Brotherhood Happenings

Dark Voice Correspondent Anonymous

After a controversial trial, new evidence was uncovered in the case of The Dark Brotherhood -vs- Co-Defendants Cannabisia and Khobai the forced the Justicar to immediately rule in thier favor, delivering a non-guilty plea. The trial sparked many discussions as to the status of the Chamber of Justice.

Meanwhile, the Headmaster showed his usual dedication to the Brotherhood this past week. During the evacuation of the Shadow Academy, Anshar personally taught the Starfighter Studies Course to members of the evacuation team, despite the vessel being fired upon by Vong Invaders.

Rumors are running amock that Dark Voice Tribune Derev Niroth was seen on a gambling yacht during the Vong Invasion. When questioned, the Battlemastered simply commented "What Happens on the yacht, stays on the yacht"

Timeros, Consul of Arcona, was recently acused of selling clan secrets of all six clans of the Brotherhood to the highest bidder. KE Timeros has denied these accusations.

Ricco Vao, the former Fiction Tribune was found guilty of using illegal scientific methods to produce clones of his person, which he then used to gain personal honor in the GJW.

Fleet Wide Transmission

The first battle in our war with the Yuuzhan Vong has ended. Antei is lost, the Autarch burns in ruins, and many of our allies have fallen. We are a defeated Brotherhood, yet we stand as a defiant Brotherhood. The loss of Antei and our antiquated fleet will serve as the decisive blow that has broken our chains to the past. The confined space of the Shroud no longer restricts our ambitions at conquest. The Clone War era Fleet no longer limits our potential. The Dark Brotherhood has entered a new day and that day is now.

As you read this transmission, elements of the new Dark Brotherhood Strike Fleet are arriving at our location. Many of you are wondering where this fleet came from and how it was paid for. The answer to your question can be found in the foresight of Grand Master Firefox. Firefox, understanding that the Brotherhood would one day leave the Imperial Remnant devised an operation code named Tempest Bravo (See further communications herein on Tempest Bravo). This operation was designed to grant the Dark Brotherhood financial independence and to give us the capability to build a modern force of war. Grand Master Firefox's vision has now become a reality as the first capital ships of this modern force arrive.

The purpose of our new fleet is not merely the reclamation of Antei, but the expansion of our territory. The isolationist policies of the past are in direct conflict with the true nature of the Dark Side. We crave power. Power is found in the domination of others and the conquest of the unknown. As the galaxy tears itself apart defending the core, we will expand into the unknown regions and wild space. There, we will secure the natural resources that will be required to establish a new Empire of Darkness.

Our future efforts will require leaders and warriors with exceptional skill. The recent incursion of the Yuuzhan Vong has once again proven that the finest of our warriors reside in Clan Taldryan. Taldryan's domination of the five lesser Clans has placed them in a position of great esteem. To honor Taldryan's continued domination of the Dark Brotherhood, I have granted them the unparalleled right of selecting the first and finest Clan ready warship from the new Dark Brotherhood Strike Fleet.

Despite the continued dominance of Clan Taldryan, the other Clans will also have an opportunity to refit their damaged fleets. This fleet refit will begin within the month and will consist of a total overhaul of all Dark Brotherhood forces. Clans will select their forces based in order of their performance in the last four Vendettas (GJW5, GJW6, RoS, GJW7). Each Clan will find that after the reset their forces will be a much greater threat to strike at our enemies. Supply and procurement officers will be in touch with each Clan Consul shortly.

Each of you has performed admirably in our latest conflict, but the future holds many trials and tribulations. You may return to your Clan systems if they still exist or you may remain with the Dark Council fleet at our current location. We will remain here for thirty six hours prior to departing for our second rendezvous location.

May Darkness Guide you,

Grand Master Sarin

Fleet Wide Transmission

In the time of war, the Dark Brotherhood turns to our greatest leaders and most skilled warriors. The recent incursion of the Yuuzhan Vong has put the Dark Brotherhood to the fire and yet we have persevered. The following warriors and leaders have distinguished themselves above all others and because of this they are to be granted artifacts of power and elevation in status within the Brotherhood.

Merit Awards

Primarch Duga Taldrya Arkarso: Duga Taldrya Arkaso, Consul of Clan Taldryan, has displayed leadership and skill in the face of insurmountable odds. Pinned between the Yuuzhan Vong and jealous lesser Clans, Duga led Clan Taldrya to an unprecedented seventh consecutive victory in a Great War. Calling upon his reserve forces and marshalling the Elders of Taldryan, Duga willed his Clan to strategic victory after strategic victory. Using the ways of Dun Moch, Duga crushed his opponents will to fight and won many battles without firing a shot.

Duga has proven that he is without peer in the ranks of Consuls and his exceptional consecutive record of two Great War victories and one Rite of Supremacy have placed him in esteem that very few Dark Brotherhood members will ever achieve. For Valor on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Primarch Duga Taldrya Arkarso the Diamond Sword.

Dark Jedi Master Sith Bloodfyre-Tarentae: Dark Jedi Master Sith Bloodfyre-Tarentae is a Dark Colossus amongst mere children of the Dark Side. Having served almost one full year as Consul of Clan Tarentum, Bloodfyre has led his Clan through battle with decisiveness and élan. His determination, will, and ability to use those around him allowed Clan Tarentum to escape the Great War with the Yuuzhan Vong with the majority of his fleet intact. Bloodfyre's tactical brilliance and decision making placed his Clan only second to that of the First Clan.

Bloodfyre's single determination in securing victory for his Clan has placed him on a level that very few Dark Brotherhood members will ever see. It is this singular dedication in improving his Clan that we now honor Bloodfyre. For Valor on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Jedi Master Bloodfyre-Tarentae the Amethyst Kukri.

Battlemaster Raken: The Sith Order honors cunning and subterfuge. It is in these arts that we may find our greatest warriors. Unlike many who boast and brag of their prowess, it is the true warriors who operate from the shadows. This is where we find the Praetor to the Grand Master, Raken. Raken has lived in the background quietly watching and recording every action of the Dark Brotherhood. With superb skill and knowledge he has crafted a detailed database on all those who call the Dark Brotherhood home. During the recent Great War with the Yuuzhan Vong, Raken advised and counseled the Grand Master on relations with the Clans and served as a liaison. His attention to detail and skill at observation allowed a great portion of the Dark Council fleet to escape Antei unharmed. Raken's knowledge, dedication, and skill have placed him above all others who hold the rank of Battlemaster. Raken has established a mark of excellence that will be the standard for all Great Wars to come. For Valor on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Battlemaster Raken the Emerald Dagger.

Pontifex Braecen Kaeth Kunar: The Krath Order honors those scholars who seek knowledge and spend their days instructing their followers. It is in these Krath Ranks that we find Pontifex Braecen Kaeth Kunar. Determined to develop his Clan in the finer aspects of the Force, Braecen has set an example for all other Consuls to follow. His dedication to improving the understanding of those around him has paid off as Clan Scholae Palatinae challenged for the right to be called First Clan. Spending time and energy Braecen has reshaped CSP and has modeled the Clan after those Krath sects that succeeded in finding true understanding of the ways of the force.

Braecen's skill, dedication, and hard work have earned him the right to be known as a scholar and a mentor. His establishment of policies and procedures that have led to a streamlined and efficient Clan serve as an example for all to follow. For his wisdom and knowledge, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Pontifex Braecen Kaeth Kunar the Ruby Scepter.

Epis Xia Long: The Dark Brotherhood database and knowledge center is a pivotal part of our operations. This source of knowledge has been updated and improved upon over the past year by the exceptional skill of Krath Epis Xia Long. Xia has streamlined several areas of our database and has made knowledge more accessible and readily available to our members.

When confronted with the pending invasion of the Yuuzhan Vong, Epis Long secured the Dark Brotherhood knowledge base and conducted an immediate transfer to the Grand Master's Flagship. Her quick thinking and skill saved the Dark Brotherhood from entering a period of information black out and allowed our forces to rally out of the Antei system. For her wisdom and knowledge, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Krath Epis Xia Long the Sapphire Blade.

Dark Jedi Master Halcyon Rokir: Dark Jedi Master Halcyon Rokir has led the Dark Brotherhood in combat and weapons training for the length of the Great Jedi War. His skills as Combat Master led to several stunning victories and influenced the Dark Brotherhood's successful campaigns. In Halc, the DB is fortunate to have a member who is talented and skilled at his profession.

Over the course of the last year Halcyon has served in the Dark Brotherhood in many capacities. He held our roll and maintained the logistical aspects of the Dark Brotherhood as our Master At Arms. He served with dignity and skill as the Deputy Grand Master and provided priceless insight and advice on all aspects of the Dark Brotherhood. He now serves the Dark Brotherhood as the ultimate trainer of our forces and has done an exceptional job. For his skill and dedication, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Jedi Master Halcyon Rokir the Amethyst Kukri.

Dark Side Adept Sharad Taldrya Hett: Dark Side Adept Sharad Taldrya Hett has proven himself to be one of the most formidable warriors in the Dark Brotherhood. His prowess on the battlefield, in particular the realm of one on one combat was at the very least phenomenal. Displaying skill and vengeance he toyed with and then dispatched over seventeen individual warriors. Sharad's efforts in the Great Jedi War led to Clan Taldryan finishing as First Clan yet again. For his skill and dedication, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Side Adept Sharad Taldrya Hett the Sapphire Blade.

Dark Jedi Master Alanna Taldrya: Prowess on the Battlefield is often found in the brute strength of warriors; however, a more cunning and disciplined prowess exists in those who have transcended within the Dark Side. One such warrior who has displayed this talent is Dark Jedi Master Alanna Taldrya. Using her skills on the field of battle Alanna placed herself in the highest of esteem. Her efforts on behalf of the Clan Taldryan secured victory for the First Clan yet again. For her skill on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Jedi Master Alanna Taldrya the Sapphire Blade.

Dark Prophet Telaris "Mav" Taldrya Cantor: A Dark Prophet is a dangerous and deadly foe. Feared for their power and seconded only to the Grand Masters, the Dark Prophets are the epitome of the Dark Side of the Force. Amongst these Dark Prophets, one stands alone. This Dark Prophet, Telaris "Mav" Taldrya Cantor has once again demonstrated why he is feared and respected across the Dark Brotherhood. Returning from his intense studies of the Dark Side, Mav dominated the GJW with skill and élan. His prowess on the field of battle and skill as a master of Dun Moch intimidated his opponents into submission.

It is impossible to derive if Clan Taldryan would have found victory in the GJW if it were not for the efforts of Mav, but one thing is certain. His knowledge and skill were welcome additions to both Clan Taldryan and the Grand Master. Serving as an advisor and combatant, Mav displayed his unique value to the Dark Brotherhood. For his skill and wisdom, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Prophet Telaris "Mav" Taldrya Cantor the Sapphire Blade.

Epis RevengeX Palpatine: Krath Epis RevengeX Palpatine has served as a devout son of Palpatine supplying priceless leadership as the QUA of House Acclivis Draco. His dominating performance in the Great Jedi War inspired and motivated his troops and superiors alike. Leading from the front, Revenge was without peer in CSP during the War. For his continued service to the Dark Brotherhood and his dominating performance in the GJW, I, Grand Master Sarin, award the Sapphire Blade to Epis RevengeX Palpatine.

Archpriest Impetus Korin: Archpriest Impetus Korin has served two Houses (HAD & HC), but her faith in CSP has never changed despite serving a multitude of positions. Her commitment and dedication is shown by her valor on the battlefield as she rallies her fellow members to give their best. Waging war against the Clans of the Dark Brotherhood and the Yuuzhan Vong, Impetus placed herself as one of CSP's finest warriors. For her service and dedication to the Dark Brotherhood and CSP, I, Grand Master Sarin, award the Sapphire Blade to Archpriest Impetus Korin.

Prelate Chaosrain Taldrya: Serving as Proconsul of the First Clan is a difficult and demanding task. Fortunately for Clan Taldryan and the Dark Brotherhood as a whole, Chaosrain Taldrya is more than up to the task. Leading by example, Chaos fought valiantly during the GJW. His dedication and effort ensured a 7th consecutive victory for Clan Taldryan and ensured another year of First Clan Status. For his service and leadership to Clan Taldryan and the Dark Brotherhood, I, Grand Master Sarin, award the Sapphire Blade to Prelate Chaosrain Taldrya.

Dark Side Adept Shadow Taldrya: Some individuals cannot escape the fact that they are born leaders. These individuals are motivators and often lead through example. One such member that has this quality is Shadow Taldrya. A leader without position, Shadow has dominated the Great Jedi War. His efforts have led Taldrya to a seventh consecutive GJW victory and the title of First Clan once again. Heralded by his Consul, Dark Prophets, and more than one Grand Master, it is easy to see why Shadow is so highly respected. For his leadership and domination of the GJW, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Side Adept Shadow Taldrya the Amethyst Kukri.

Promotions

Pontifex Strategos Thanatos Entar Arconae: Pontifex Strategos has led the forces of Arcona from the front of three consecutive wars. During this time Strategos has proven his willpower and courage, marking him as one of Arcona's greatest warriors. Leading by example, Strategos has waded in amongst the enemy with the full use of the Dark Side at his command. Slaying countless warriors, he has led by example rather than words and his example is one that all Equites should seek to copy.

Strategos has displayed leadership and dedication to both Arcona and the Dark Brotherhood and he has earned the respect of his peers and subordinates alike. Strategos has passed beyond the knowledge of the Equite Class and has gained the required skill and power to become an Elder. For his skill and prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Pontifex Strategos Thanatos Entar Arconae to the rank of Dark Adept.

Pontifex Troutrooper Tarentae: Pontifex Troutrooper has distinguished himself as a scholar and trusted advisor to all those who know him. Serving at the will of two Grand Masters, Troutrooper has explored the deep mysteries of arcane and esoteric Force abilities. Troutrooper's knowledge has led to the foundation that will one day serve as the core of Force powers all Brotherhood members are trained in. Pontifex Troutrooper has also proven to be one of our greatest warriors. Leading from the front, TT has led Tarentum in four consecutive conflicts. His skill and cunning in war has proved to be an enormous addition to the already venerable forces of Clan Tarentum. TT's combined knowledge and warrior prowess has surpassed that of the Equite Ranks. For his wisdom in scholarly pursuits and his prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Pontifex Troutrooper to the rank of Dark Adept.

Battlelord Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow: Conflict and Chaos are often excellent environments to judge the true measure of a leader. Two months ago, Macron assumed command of Clan Naga Sadow under such circumstances. In the time since his accession to Consul, Macron has proven his skill and leadership ability. These skills have been placed on display during the last two weeks when Macron rallied CNS to fight to the very death and secure a more prominent position amongst the Clans of the Dark Brotherhood. While other Clans sputtered and faltered, Macron and CNS rose to the challenge and continued to fight the vast power of the Yuuzhan Vong.

Macron has spent a long time developing his skills and honing the power of the Dark Side. His labors have been justified by the unification of his Clan under his banner and the removal of the CNS stigma of being a soft push over. For his expert leadership, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Battlelord Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow to the rank of Sith Warlord.

Battlelord Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar: Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar has displayed the warrior ethos in a manner unequalled amongst the Consuls of the Dark Brotherhood. Leader by words and most importantly deeds, Aabsdu placed himself at the tip of the spear in combating the Yuuzhan Vong. Aabsdu has personified the fighting commander that any subordinate would want to serve under by sacrificing his blood, time, and energy.

Through three consecutive wars and countless skirmishes Aabsdu has displayed the confidence, initiative and skill required to advance. His work in combating the Crimson Empire prior to the War with the Yuuzhan Vong granted him skills that he has put to great use in our on-going conflict and they have granted him the necessary ability to become a Sith Warlord. For his prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Sith Battlelord Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar to the rank of Sith Warlord.

Battlemaster Kraval Novir: The business of war is not limited to the fighting on the battlefield. Forces must be marshaled, supplies must be provided, and equipment must be transported. The Dark Brotherhood is fortunate to have a Dark Warrior in Battlemaster Kraval Novir, who can accomplish these tasks. Kraval has distinguished himself among the greatest of Master at Arms. His work is a thankless and often unnoticed job, yet we could not function as a war fighting organization without him. In the past six months Kraval has processed thousands of requests and streamlined the procurement process for the entire Dark Brotherhood.

Sith Battlemaster Kraval Novir has also recently assumed secondary duties in combat training and weapon mastery. These skills have only added to Kraval's value as an integral part of the Dark Brotherhood command staff. Processing requests and training recruits are not the most exciting of missions assigned to members of the Dark Brotherhood, but they are tasks that are essential to our survival. For his dedication and effort at improving the day to day operations of the Dark Brotherhood, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Sith Battlemaster Kraval Novir to the rank of Sith Battlelord.

Sith Battlemaster Dacien "BubbaX" Victae: Sith Battlemaster Dacien "BubbaX" Victae is a warrior of many talents. Over the last year Dacien has served as QUA, PCON, CON, QUA, LHoJ, and P:HM. He has served in each of these positions with distinction and honor while maintaining a high level of personal activity. Dacien's most recent accomplishments include computer upgrades and analysis to the Shadow Academy, computer upgrades to the Clan Plagueis computer network, and multiple judicial cases as a Hand of Justice.

Serving in multiple positions over a period of time is not a path to power in the Dark Side, but serving in these positions while accomplishing great amounts of work on behalf of the Dark Brotherhood is. SBM Dacien "BubbaX" Victae is a champion amongst the Equite Class and it is time for him to reach new levels of responsibility. For dedication and superior work, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Sith Battlemaster Dacien "BubbaX" Victae to the rank of Sith Warlord.

Primarch Sithspawn Taldrya: Primarch Sithspawn Taldrya has gone above and beyond the call of duty in serving Clan Taldryan in the last two years. His efforts have ensured Taldryan victory in two Great Jedi Wars, three Rites of Supremacy, and a House Civil War. His dedication to destroying all those who oppose Taldryan has been equaled by only a few members of the First Clan.

Serving as the leader of House Dinaari, Sithspawn has elevated his outstanding leadership ability and inspired the troops under his command. Using his intellect and wisdom he completed tasks during the war that ensured victory for Clan Taldryan. His leadership has been heralded by the members of his Clan and they have overwhelmingly encouraged his status in the Dark Brotherhood reflect the efforts he has put forth. For his dedication to the Dark Brotherhood and Clan Taldryan, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Primarch Sithspawn Taldrya to the rank of Dark Adept.

Epis Dark Sabre Taldrya: Epis Dark Sabre has gone too long unrecognized for his long-standing service to his Clan and the Brotherhood as a whole. In these times of open war, there are those among us who will rise above the fallen and achieve in the face of an enemy whose only mercy is death and whose number is legion. These are the Dark Jedi to whom the lesser among us must look and draw from them inspiration to carry my will to the enemy.

Let none among Taldryan or the Brotherhood forget what Dark Sabre has given us over these last weeks of blood. Let no one look upon him and not see that his scars from this war are more fitting a recognition of honor than any award or promotion. And let none among you address him as Epis hence. He has helped to lead Taldryan to victory through his actions in single combat as well as with his trusted advice to his leadership. For his wisdom in scholarly pursuits and his prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Dark Sabre to the rank of Pontifex.

Dark Jedi Knight Sai Na'Ashar Keibatsu: It is said that Dark Jedi Knight Sai Na'Ashar Keibatsu is one of the most promising members in the Dark Brotherhood. Having served as a Battle Team leader and Rollmaster, Sai ensured the smooth logistical operation of Clan Naga Sadow and helped push CNS forward through the Great Jedi War. This effort and dedication is multiplied when viewed from the perspective that Sai is but a journeyman in the Brotherhood.

Having proven himself above and beyond the status of a journeyman, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Dark Jedi Knight Sai Na'Ashar Keibatsu to the rank of Krath Priest.

Priest Ashia Kagan Keibatsu: Dedication, selfless sacrifice, honor, duty, and integrity and the terms that not only define Krath Priest Ashia Kagan Keibatsu, but they are the very things that separate her from so many in the Dark Brotherhood. Serving as a leader, friend, advisor, and mentor, Ashia has developed into one of the finest young leaders in the Dark Brotherhood. Her dedication to improving her House, Her Clan, and the Dark Brotherhood as a whole mark her as a future Elder and as a future Dark Council member.

Her efforts in the Great Jedi War motivated and inspired Clan Naga Sadow. Without Ashia, CNS would have had a difficult time maintaining their efforts throughout the war. For her honor and skill as a leader, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Priest Ashia Kagan Keibatsu to the rank of Archpriest.

Warrior Vardar Fen'Amar Ordo: Warrior Vardar Fen'Amar Ordo performed without equal in the Great Jedi War. Destruction personified, Vardar single handedly destroyed over three hundred opponents in man to man combat. His prowess on the battlefield dominated the five lesser clans of the Dark Brotherhood and all came to fear the wrath of his lightsaber.

Having served as a Warrior for eleven months, Vardar's knowledge and power have far surpassed his current rank. For his domination of the Great Jedi War and his dedication to the Dark Brotherhood, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Warriar Vardar Fen'Amar Ordo to the rank of Sith Battlemaster.

Great Jedi War Aftermath

Sith Battlemaster Raken

He had finished explaining it to them.

That they had come was nearly enough, but he had wanted to see their fear, or its absence, personally. Sarin looked at those seated before him around the elongated oval table. There had been reluctance, but they had come. All the Consuls listed to a degree in their chairs showing the signs of fatigue and injury. This had cost them like nothing before. The Clans had acclimated to internecine conflicts often proving as bloodless as they were pointless. This had been a real fight; the first for many.

And they had lost.

The Yuuzhan Vong, as they had come to be known, had crushed them utterly. The mighty Clans of the Brotherhood had but stained the treads of those who brokered power in its purest form. No negotiations. No compromise. No peace, but that found at the end of a sword. It was enough to make him believe they deserved extinction at the hands of those who had the will to shape the galaxy to their ends.

His own will had been tested many times. Sarin had questioned his reign as Grand Master and whether that time would have been better spent in solitary study of the Dark Side, rather than acting as mediator between those too spoiled to deserve what they had and too lazy to reach for more. He was amazed all of them had survived. But survival was their specialty.

Did they believe they served at the Grand Master's leave, or were they naïve enough to think he served at theirs?

Perhaps Cotelin was right about it having been a mistake to add them to the Council. But each had arrayed a cadre of loyalists and political constituents too often to which their power was owed. This he would amend in time. He wasn't entirely without his own supporters. The "now" was what concerned him. He would negotiate their cooperation in the interim by any means necessary. Including the promise of new ships to replace those they had lost to the Vong. How empty that promise would be would depend greatly on their level of cooperation. The real power would remain in his grasp at all times from now until the end of his reign. This was partially demonstrated by the quartet of new, Nebula-class Star Destroyers—state-of-the-art ships heavily modified by Verpine engineers—flanking them now. The vessels hung in space outside the viewports full of quiet menace. Still more waited on station though not fully operational. A show of force for the Consuls, most of whose fleets lay in near ruin. That the Destroyers were manned with skeleton crews would remain guarded until he had siphoned the personnel he needed from the disorganization sure to riddle the Clans for months to come.

Sarin wouldn't fully tip his hand here at this table. No, here he would placate and countenance until the swelling of their pride abated. He could afford no more Anteïs. But his position was not unassailable. He had ships, yes—purchased with billions of credits embezzled from the Hammer and brokered by the Star Chamber—but he needed crews. He needed soldiers. Most of all, he needed their Jedi; that most precious of resources. Droids would only take him so far. The truth on the first day of the war was much the same as on the last.

They needed each other.

This they would see. If not, he would descend without warning from the abyss of hyperspace with his fleet and glass each and every world they called home. They would be in no position to stop him anytime soon. Especially not with the battered relics they quaintly referred to as “warships”. Fear would keep them in line. Fear and the promise of more power: tools as old as the first stone knife, but as complex to wield as the lightsaber.

Things had changed, but the Brotherhood would go on. It had no choice. For the war was not actually over. They would need to quickly adapt their thinking and realize that what had transpired over the last week was not a war, but a battle. And a minor one at that. The war was out there, raging just past the stars he could see twinkling through the transparisteel. To the enemy, this had been nothing but another victory with a few insignificant losses. To Sarin and the Brotherhood, it had nearly ended their way of life.

He had scarcely scratched the surface of the mounting reports coming in from all Brotherhood assets. Ships lost, facilities destroyed, thousands dead, wounded or missing, his own Deputy Grand Master in critical condition; it was staggering. They had literally brought a stun baton to a blaster fight. Sarin still needed time to consider his own encounter with the enemy and apply the lessons learned there. There was more to accomplish now than there had ever been before.

Bloodfyre was the first to speak.

“Lord Sarin, how is Muz?”

This surprised Sarin. Was he that transparent? Did the Shaevalian wish to know out of genuine concern, or was this simply another surreptitious ploy to gauge the Dark Council’s current strength? And what of Muz and his experience onboard the alien vessel? When recovered, Sarin desperately needed to know what else he could tell the Brotherhood about its enemy. As well as the apparent confederate, Volngah, whose whereabouts were unknown. All Muz had managed to convey was that it was the Priest who had helped him escape.

This and more swirled through Sarin’s mind but he responded simply with, “Well.”

He could afford no weakness in front of them.

“How does the rest of the Dark Council fare?” This from the Plagueian. “I don’t see many of them here.”

More probing for weaknesses. Sarin considered shedding their blood here and now, but ever the tactician, said only, “Away. There is much work to be done if we are to survive and one day retake Antei.”

“Retake it?” Macron blurted, forgetting himself. “Why?” The Sadowite saw no reason to risk his forces further and, though he dare not voice it, he felt strongly that the Grand Master’s absence during nearly the entirety of the war had contributed significantly to the loss of the system.

Sarin's eyes flashed, but he let the insult pass. He had been absent. Were he to have stayed though, even a Grand Master and his flagship would have made little difference to the outcome. Against such a foe, what was needed was time to discover their weaknesses, and ships to exploit them. Now he had both. For a while.

“Let me answer your question with one of my own: Who fears us now, Macron?” Sarin stood meeting the eyes of all assembled. Consuls, Councilors, and confidants alike, none had an answer. “Bloodfyr? Anyone? The answer is no one. No one fears us and rightly so. We are not the threat. Why will Antei be retaken? It will be retaken because if we who call ourselves Dark Jedi cannot hold onto what is ours, then all we hold to are false oaths,” Sarin said, voice modulating unnaturally. “And then our very existence would be a farce. We who so casually liken ourselves to the Sith Lords of old.”

Silence.

“But when we do retake it,” Sarin said, “against an enemy as powerful and ruthless as this, who then can deny our right to deliver the Final Way? Who then would not fear us?” Few met his eyes. “This is a trial, gentlemen. We will face it.”

Sarin sat down again observing them. Some he could read clearly, some with more difficulty. But all understood. He asked, “Are there more concerns then?” He knew there would be none...for now. “Another time then. You will find instructions waiting for you when you return to your ships. Do not fail me, gentlemen.”

They wouldn't.

Of this, there was no doubt.

Dark Council Unveils New Fleet

Grand Master Sarin

History

Ten years ago the Dark Brotherhood initiated operation Tempest Bravo. Intelligence operatives acting under the direct orders of Grand Master Firefox infiltrated Imperial logistical and financial centers. These agents, often Imperial Admirals, remained black for two years until they were activated hours before the Exodus. Acting under preset orders the infiltrators altered logistical supply routes and redirected financial payments to Dark Brotherhood assets. Within hours the operatives of Tempest Bravo laundered billions of Imperial credits to the Dark Brotherhood and secured our financial independence.

Following the initial successes of Tempest Bravo the program was shut down. The original agents were exfiltrated out of Imperial space and brought to Antei for extensive debriefing. During the debriefings it was determined that follow on operations could be conducted using Imperial defectors. Under the command of Dark Brotherhood Intelligence Tempest Bravo became active once again with Grand Master Cotelin personally serving as the case manager for all future defectors. Within months Grand Master Cotelin secured the defection of countless Imperial Admirals. In each instance these defecting Admirals would redirect assets under their command to the Dark Brotherhood coffers. The Capstone of Tempest Bravo came with the defection of then Sector Admiral Sarin who possessed nearly unlimited access to Imperial Remnant assets. The windfall of this final Tempest Bravo operation was the procurement of operational funds for four full Imperial battle groups.

In 24 ABY, Grand Master Cotelin positioned the Tempest Bravo funds into a Corporate Sector Authority (CSA) shell organization. The Corporate Sector Authority façade provided the means for Lord Cotelin to approach the Kuat Drive Yards (KDY) and begin negotiations for the creation of a new Dark Brotherhood Fleet. Within a month KDY and the falsified CSA organization had reached an arrangement for ten capital class warships to be constructed at the remote Xa Fel facilities.

Technology

In 26 ABY, now Grand Master Sarin secured the technological services of the Verpine. Transferring the recently completed Dark Brotherhood fleet to Roche, Grand Master Sarin ordered a complete technical upgrade to the new fleet. Two of these upgrades are now presented for the Dark Brotherhood. The classification of this material is secret/noforn.

STRADEF: The Verpine Generation two Strategic Defense (STRADEF) computer weapon system enables unparalleled defensive capabilities. This system projects a defensive radar globe around all craft equipped with STRADEF. When a foreign object enters the STRADEF defensive globe the Fleet automatically targets and fires the highest probable solution to destroy the foreign object.

Verpine EM1: The Verpine Electromagnetic (EM) Shield Package is an EM resistant defensive capability designed to withstand ion blasts and electromagnetic attacks. EM1 utilizes dissipation properties spread across a ship's exterior to defend against crippling EM attacks.

Shadow Academy Report

Dark Jedi Master Anshar

The Shadow Academy continues to undergo its process of constant change. Recently, SBM Dacien "BubbaX" Victae replaced OT Dranik Tarentae as Praetor to the Headmaster. "Dranik had some other things he had to take care of and we both felt that this change was for the best," said the Headmaster. Also joining the Shadow Academy staff as Eclectic Pedagogues are SW Dismal Visutor (Sith Alchemy) and KP Kara Zor-El (Krath Core). The previous Eclectic Pedagogues have moved onto other things in the Brotherhood.

Also, new courses either have been introduced or will be coming out in the future. A new starfighters course was released to replace the outdated ISET and ESET courses. One member has already received permission to write a history course of the Old Republic and the Headmaster has also put out a call for a volunteer to write a freighter and transport course so that all three primary categories of starships will be covered. "Originally, I intended to cut back on the number of courses, but demand from the membership has told me that we need to offer more than what we currently have," said the Headmaster.

Finally, in a project started by the new praetor, the Shadow Academy is in the process of developing topic based degrees. No details were forthcoming at this time; however BubbaX did state that the system would be rolled out in phases. "There's no set date for this, but if members watch the main news announcements, they will be kept up to date on the project's progress. We are trying our best not to drag it out."

Brotherhood Happenings

Dark Voice Correspondent Anonymous

After a controversial trial, new evidence was uncovered in the case of The Dark Brotherhood -vs- Co-Defendants Cannabisia and Khobai the forced the Justicar to immediately rule in their favor, delivering a non-guilty plea. The trial sparked many discussions as to the status of the Chamber of Justice.

Meanwhile, the Headmaster showed his usual dedication to the Brotherhood this past week. During the evacuation of the Shadow Academy, Anshar personally taught the Starfighter Studies Course to members of the evacuation team, despite the vessel being fired upon by Vong Invaders.

Rumors are running amock that Dark Voice Tribune Derev Niroth was seen on a gambling yacht during the Vong Invasion. When questioned, the Battlemastered simply commented "What Happens on the yacht, stays on the yacht"

Timeros, Consul of Arcona, was recently acused of selling clan secrets of all six clans of the Brotherhood to the highest bidder. KE Timeros has denied these accusations.

Ricco Vao, the former Fiction Tribune was found guilty of using illegal scientific methods to produce clones of his person, which he then used to gain personal honor in the GJW.

Fleet Wide Transmission

The first battle in our war with the Yuuzhan Vong has ended. Antei is lost, the Autarch burns in ruins, and many of our allies have fallen. We are a defeated Brotherhood, yet we stand as a defiant Brotherhood. The loss of Antei and our antiquated fleet will serve as the decisive blow that has broken our chains to the past. The confined space of the Shroud no longer restricts our ambitions at conquest. The Clone War era Fleet no longer limits our potential. The Dark Brotherhood has entered a new day and that day is now.

As you read this transmission, elements of the new Dark Brotherhood Strike Fleet are arriving at our location. Many of you are wondering where this fleet came from and how it was paid for. The answer to your question can be found in the foresight of Grand Master Firefox. Firefox, understanding that the Brotherhood would one day leave the Imperial Remnant devised an operation code named Tempest Bravo (See further communications herein on Tempest Bravo). This operation was designed to grant the Dark Brotherhood financial independence and to give us the capability to build a modern force of war. Grand Master Firefox's vision has now become a reality as the first capital ships of this modern force arrive.

The purpose of our new fleet is not merely the reclamation of Antei, but the expansion of our territory. The isolationist policies of the past are in direct conflict with the true nature of the Dark Side. We crave power. Power is found in the domination of others and the conquest of the unknown. As the galaxy tears itself apart defending the core, we will expand into the unknown regions and wild space. There, we will secure the natural resources that will be required to establish a new Empire of Darkness.

Our future efforts will require leaders and warriors with exceptional skill. The recent incursion of the Yuuzhan Vong has once again proven that the finest of our warriors reside in Clan Taldryan. Taldryan's domination of the five lesser Clans has placed them in a position of great esteem. To honor Taldryan's continued domination of the Dark Brotherhood, I have granted them the unparalleled right of selecting the first and finest Clan ready warship from the new Dark Brotherhood Strike Fleet.

Despite the continued dominance of Clan Taldryan, the other Clans will also have an opportunity to refit their damaged fleets. This fleet refit will begin within the month and will consist of a total overhaul of all Dark Brotherhood forces. Clans will select their forces based in order of their performance in the last four Vendettas (GJW5, GJW6, RoS, GJW7). Each Clan will find that after the reset their forces will be a much greater threat to strike at our enemies. Supply and procurement officers will be in touch with each Clan Consul shortly.

Each of you has performed admirably in our latest conflict, but the future holds many trials and tribulations. You may return to your Clan systems if they still exist or you may remain with the Dark Council fleet at our current location. We will remain here for thirty six hours prior to departing for our second rendezvous location.

May Darkness Guide you,

Grand Master Sarin

Fleet Wide Transmission

In the time of war, the Dark Brotherhood turns to our greatest leaders and most skilled warriors. The recent incursion of the Yuuzhan Vong has put the Dark Brotherhood to the fire and yet we have persevered. The following warriors and leaders have distinguished themselves above all others and because of this they are to be granted artifacts of power and elevation in status within the Brotherhood.

Merit Awards

Primarch Duga Taldrya Arkarso: Duga Taldrya Arkaso, Consul of Clan Taldryan, has displayed leadership and skill in the face of insurmountable odds. Pinned between the Yuuzhan Vong and jealous lesser Clans, Duga led Clan Taldrya to an unprecedented seventh consecutive victory in a Great War. Calling upon his reserve forces and marshalling the Elders of Taldryan, Duga willed his Clan to strategic victory after strategic victory. Using the ways of Dun Moch, Duga crushed his opponents will to fight and won many battles without firing a shot.

Duga has proven that he is without peer in the ranks of Consuls and his exceptional consecutive record of two Great War victories and one Rite of Supremacy have placed him in esteem that very few Dark Brotherhood members will ever achieve. For Valor on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Primarch Duga Taldrya Arkarso the Diamond Sword.

Dark Jedi Master Sith Bloodfyre-Tarentae: Dark Jedi Master Sith Bloodfyre-Tarentae is a Dark Colossus amongst mere children of the Dark Side. Having served almost one full year as Consul of Clan Tarentum, Bloodfyre has led his Clan through battle with decisiveness and élan. His determination, will, and ability to use those around him allowed Clan Tarentum to escape the Great War with the Yuuzhan Vong with the majority of his fleet intact. Bloodfyre's tactical brilliance and decision making placed his Clan only second to that of the First Clan.

Bloodfyre's single determination in securing victory for his Clan has placed him on a level that very few Dark Brotherhood members will ever see. It is this singular dedication in improving his Clan that we now honor Bloodfyre. For Valor on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Jedi Master Bloodfyre-Tarentae the Amethyst Kukri.

Battlemaster Raken: The Sith Order honors cunning and subterfuge. It is in these arts that we may find our greatest warriors. Unlike many who boast and brag of their prowess, it is the true warriors who operate from the shadows. This is where we find the Praetor to the Grand Master, Raken. Raken has lived in the background quietly watching and recording every action of the Dark Brotherhood. With superb skill and knowledge he has crafted a detailed database on all those who call the Dark Brotherhood home. During the recent Great War with the Yuuzhan Vong, Raken advised and counseled the Grand Master on relations with the Clans and served as a liason. His attention to detail and skill at observation allowed a great portion of the Dark Council fleet to escape Antei unharmed.

Raken's knowledge, dedication, and skill have placed him above all others who hold the rank of Battlemaster. Raken has established a mark of excellence that will be the standard for all Great Wars to come. For Valor on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Battlemaster Raken the Emerald Dagger.

Pontifex Braecen Kaeth Kunar: The Krath Order honors those scholars who seek knowledge and spend their days instructing their followers. It is in these Krath Ranks that we find Pontifex Braecen Kaeth Kunar. Determined to develop his Clan in the finer aspects of the Force, Braecen has set an example for all other Consuls to follow. His dedication to improving the understanding of those around him has paid off as Clan Scholae Palatinae challenged for the right to be called First Clan. Spending time and energy Braecen has reshaped CSP and has modeled the Clan after those Krath sects that succeeded in finding true understanding of the ways of the force.

Braecen's skill, dedication, and hard work have earned him the right to be known as a scholar and a mentor. His establishment of policies and procedures that have led to a streamlined and efficient Clan serve as an example for all to follow. For his wisdom and knowledge, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Pontifex Braecen Kaeth Kunar the Ruby Scepter.

Epis Xia Long: The Dark Brotherhood database and knowledge center is a pivotal part of our operations. This source of knowledge has been updated and improved upon over the past year by the exceptional skill of Krath Epis Xia Long. Xia has streamlined several areas of our database and has made knowledge more accessible and readily available to our members.

When confronted with the pending invasion of the Yuuzhan Vong, Epis Long secured the Dark Brotherhood knowledge base and conducted an immediate transfer to the Grand Master's Flagship. Her quick thinking and skill saved the Dark Brotherhood from entering a period of information black out and allowed our forces to rally out of the Antei system. For her wisdom and knowledge, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Krath Epis Xia Long the Sapphire Blade.

Dark Jedi Master Halcyon Rokir: Dark Jedi Master Halcyon Rokir has led the Dark Brotherhood in combat and weapons training for the length of the Great Jedi War. His skills as Combat Master led to several stunning victories and influenced the Dark Brotherhood's successful campaigns. In Halc, the DB is fortunate to have a member who is talented and skilled at his profession.

Over the course of the last year Halcyon has served in the Dark Brotherhood in many capacities. He held our roll and maintained the logistical aspects of the Dark Brotherhood as our Master At Arms. He served with dignity and skill as the Deputy Grand Master and provided priceless insight and advice on all aspects of the Dark Brotherhood. He now serves the Dark Brotherhood as the ultimate trainer of our forces and has done an exceptional job. For his skill and dedication, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Jedi Master Halcyon Rokir the Amethyst Kukri.

Dark Side Adept Sharad Taldrya Hett: Dark Side Adept Sharad Taldrya Hett has proven himself to be one of the most formidable warriors in the Dark Brotherhood. His prowess on the battlefield, in particular the realm of one on one contact was at the very least phenomenal. Displaying skill and vengeance he toyed with and then dispatched over seventeen individual warriors. Sharad's efforts in the Great Jedi War led to Clan Taldryan finishing as First Clan yet again. For his skill and dedication, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Side Adept Sharad Taldrya Hett the Sapphire Blade.

Dark Jedi Master Alanna Taldrya: Prowess on the Battlefield is often found in the brute strength of warriors; however, a more cunning and disciplined prowess exists in those who have transcended within the Dark Side. One such warrior who has displayed this talent is Dark Jedi Master Alanna Taldrya. Using her skills on the field of battle Alanna placed herself in the highest of esteem. Her efforts on behalf of the Clan Taldryan secured victory for the First Clan yet again. For her skill on the field of battle, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Jedi Master Alanna Taldrya the Sapphire Blade.

Dark Prophet Telaris "Mav" Taldrya Cantor: A Dark Prophet is a dangerous and deadly foe. Feared for their power and seconded only to the Grand Masters, the Dark Prophets are the epitome of the Dark Side of the Force. Amongst these Dark Prophets, one stands alone. This Dark Prophet, Telaris "Mav" Taldrya Cantor has once again demonstrated why he is feared and respected across the Dark Brotherhood. Returning from his intense studies of the Dark Side, Mav dominated the GJW with skill and élan. His prowess on the field of battle and skill as a master of Dun Moch intimidated his opponents into submission.

It is impossible to derive if Clan Taldryan would have found victory in the GJW if it were not for the efforts of Mav, but one thing is certain. His knowledge and skill were welcome additions to both Clan Taldryan and the Grand Master. Serving as an advisor and combatant, Mav displayed his unique value to the Dark Brotherhood. For his skill and wisdom, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Prophet Telaris

Epis RevengeX Palpatine: Krath Epis RevengeX Palpatine has served as a devout son of Palpatine supplying priceless leadership as the QUA of House Acclivis Draco. His dominating performance in the Great Jedi War inspired and motivated his troops and superiors alike. Leading from the front, Revenge was without peer in CSP during the War. For his continued service to the Dark Brotherhood and his Dominating performance in the GJW, I, Grand Master Sarin, award the Sapphire Blade to Epis RevengeX Palpatine.

Archpriest Impetus Korin: Archpriest Impetus Korin has served two Houses (HAD & HC), but her faith in CSP has never changed despite serving a multitude of positions. Her commitment and dedication is shown by her valor on the battlefield as she rallies her fellow members to give their best. Waging war against the Clans of the Dark Brotherhood and the Yuuzhan Vong, Impetus placed herself as one of CSP’s finest warriors. For her service and dedication to the Dark Brotherhood and CSP, I, Grand Master Sarin, award the Sapphire Blade to Archpriest Impetus Korin.

Prelate Chaosrain Taldrya: Serving as Proconsul of the First Clan is a difficult and demanding task. Fortunately for Clan Taldryan and the Dark Brotherhood as a whole, Chaosrain Taldrya is more than up to the task. Leading by example, Chaos fought valiantly during the GJW. His dedication and effort ensured a 7th consecutive victory for Clan Taldryan and ensured another year of First Clan Status. For his service and leadership to Clan Taldryan and the Dark Brotherhood, I, Grand Master Sarin, award the Sapphire Blade to Prelate Chaosrain Taldrya.

Dark Side Adept Shadow Taldrya: Some individuals cannot escape the fact that they are born leaders. These individuals are motivators and often lead through example. One such member that has this quality is Shadow Taldrya. A leader without position, Shadow has dominated the Great Jedi War. His efforts have led Taldrya to a seventh consecutive GJW victory and the title of First Clan once again. Heralded by his Consul, Dark Prophets, and more than one Grand Master, it is easy to see why Shadow is so highly respected. For his leadership and domination of the GJW, I, Grand Master Sarin, award Dark Side Adept Shadow Taldrya the Amethyst Kukri.

Promotions

Pontifex Strategos Thanatos Entar Arconae: Pontifex Strategos has led the forces of Arcona from the front of three consecutive wars. During this time Strategos has proven his willpower and courage, marking him as one of Arcona’s greatest warriors. Leading by example, Strategos has waded in amongst the enemy with the full use of the Dark Side at his command. Slaying countless warriors, he has led by example rather than words and his example is one that all Equites should seek to copy.

Strategos has displayed leadership and dedication to both Arcona and the Dark Brotherhood and he has earned the respect of his peers and subordinates alike. Strategos has passed beyond the knowledge of the Equite Class and has gained the required skill and power to become an Elder. For his skill and prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Pontifex Strategos Thanatos Entar Arconae to the rank of Dark Adept.

Pontifex Troutrooper Tarentae: Pontifex Troutrooper has distinguished himself as a scholar and trusted advisor to all those who know him. Serving at the will of two Grand Masters, Troutrooper has explored the deep mysteries of arcane and esoteric Force abilities. Troutrooper’s knowledge has led to the foundation that will one day serve as the core of Force powers all Brotherhood members are trained in. Pontifex Troutrooper has also proven to be one of our greatest warriors. Leading from the front, TT has led Tarentum in four consecutive conflicts. His skill and cunning in war has proved to be an enormous addition to the already venerable forces of Clan Tarentum. TT's combined knowledge and warrior prowess has surpassed that of the Equite Ranks. For his wisdom in scholarly pursuits and his prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Pontifex Troutrooper to the rank of Dark Adept.

Battlelord Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow: Conflict and Chaos are often excellent environments to judge the true measure of a leader. Two months ago, Macron assumed command of Clan Naga Sadow under such circumstances. In the time since his accession to Consul, Macron has proven his skill and leadership ability. These skills have been placed on display during the last two weeks when Macron rallied CNS to fight to the very death and secure a more prominent position amongst the Clans of the Dark Brotherhood. While other Clans sputtered and faltered, Macron and CNS rose to the challenge and continued to fight the vast power of the Yuuzhan Vong.

Macron has spent a long time developing his skills and honing the power of the Dark Side. His labors have been justified by the unification of his Clan under his banner and the removal of the CNS stigma of being a soft push over. For his expert leadership, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Battlelord Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow to the rank of Sith Warlord.

Battlelord Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar: Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar has displayed the warrior ethos in a manner unequalled amongst the Consuls of the Dark Brotherhood. Leader by words and most importantly deeds, Aabsdu placed himself at the tip of the spear in combating the Yuuzhan Vong. Aabsdu has personified the fighting commander that any subordinate would want to serve under by sacrificing his blood, time, and energy.

Through three consecutive wars and countless skirmishes Aabsdu has displayed the confidence, initiative and skill required to advance. His work in combating the Crimson Empire prior to the War with the Yuuzhan Vong granted him skills that he has put to great use in our on-going conflict and they have granted him the necessary ability to become a Sith Warlord. For his prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Sith Battlelord Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar to the rank of Sith Warlord.

Battlemaster Kraval Novir: The business of war is not limited to the fighting on the battlefield. Forces must be marshaled, supplies must be provided, and equipment must be transported. The Dark Brotherhood is fortunate to have a Dark Warrior in Battlemaster Kraval Novir, who can accomplish these tasks. Kraval has distinguished himself among the greatest of Master at Arms. His work is a thankless and often unnoticed job, yet we could not function as a war fighting organization without him. In the past six months Kraval has processed thousands of requests and streamlined the procurement process for the entire Dark Brotherhood.

Sith Battlemaster Kraval Novir has also recently assumed secondary duties in combat training and weapon mastery. These skills have only added to Kraval's value as an integral part of the Dark Brotherhood command staff. Processing requests and training recruits are not the most exciting of missions assigned to members of the Dark Brotherhood, but they are tasks that are essential to our survival. For his dedication and effort at improving the day to day operations of the Dark Brotherhood, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Sith Battlemaster Kraval Novir to the rank of Sith Battlelord.

Sith Battlemaster Dacien “BubbaX” Victae: Sith Battlemaster Dacien “BubbaX” Victae is a warrior of many talents. Over the last year Dacien has served as QUA, PCON, CON, QUA, LHoJ, and P:HM. He has served in each of these positions with distinction and honor while maintaining a high level of personal activity. Dacien’s most recent accomplishments include computer upgrades and analysis to the Shadow Academy, computer upgrades to the Clan Plagueis computer network, and multiple judicial cases as a Hand of Justice.

Serving in multiple positions over a period of time is not a path to power in the Dark Side, but serving in these positions while accomplishing great amounts of work on behalf of the Dark Brotherhood is. SBM Dacien “BubbaX” Victae is a champion amongst the Equite Class and it is time for him to reach new levels of responsibility. For dedication and superior work, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Sith Battlemaster Dacien “BubbaX” Victae to the rank of Sith Warlord.

Primarch Sithspawn Taldrya: Primarch Sithspawn Taldrya has gone above and beyond the call of duty in serving Clan Taldryan in the last two years. His efforts have ensured Taldryan victory in two Great Jedi Wars, three Rites of Supremacy, and a House Civil War. His dedication to destroying all those who oppose Taldryan has been equaled by only a few members of the First Clan.

Serving as the leader of House Dinaari, Sithspawn has elevated his outstanding leadership ability and inspired the troops under his command. Using his intellect and wisdom he completed tasks during the war that ensured victory for Clan Taldryan. His leadership has been heralded by the members of his Clan and they have overwhelmingly encouraged his status in the Dark Brotherhood reflect the efforts he has put forth. For his dedication to the Dark Brotherhood and Clan Taldryan, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Primarch Sithspawn Taldrya to the rank of Dark Adept.

Epis Dark Sabre Taldrya: Epis Dark Sabre has gone too long unrecognized for his long-standing service to his Clan and the Brotherhood as a whole. In these times of open war, there are those among us who will rise above the fallen and achieve in the face of an enemy whose only mercy is death and whose number is legion. These are the Dark Jedi to whom the lesser among us must look and draw from them inspiration to carry my will to the enemy.

Let none among Taldryan or the Brotherhood forget what Dark Sabre has given us over these last weeks of blood. Let no one look upon him and not see that his scars from this war are more fitting a recognition of honor than any award or promotion. And let none among you address him as Epis hence. He has helped to lead Taldryan to victory through his actions in single combat as well as with his trusted advice to his leadership. For his wisdom in scholarly pursuits and his prowess on the battlefield, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Dark Sabre to the rank of Pontifex.

Dark Jedi Knight Sai Na’Ashar Keibatsu: It is said that Dark Jedi Knight Sai Na’Ashar Keibatsu is one of the most promising members in the Dark Brotherhood. Having served as a Battle Team leader and Rollmaster, Sai ensured the smooth logistical operation of Clan Naga Sadow and helped push CNS forward through the Great Jedi War. This effort and dedication is multiplied when viewed from the perspective that Sai is but a journeyman in the Brotherhood.

Having proven himself above and beyond the status of a journeyman, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Dark Jedi Knight Sai Na’Ashar Keibatsu to the rank of Krath Priest.

Priest Ashia Kagan Keibatsu: Dedication, selfless sacrifice, honor, duty, and integrity and the terms that not only define Krath Priest Ashia Kagan Keibatsu, but they are the very things that separate her from so many in the Dark Brotherhood. Serving as a leader, friend, advisor, and mentor, Ashia has developed into one of the finest young leaders in the Dark Brotherhood. Her dedication to improving her House, Her Clan, and the Dark Brotherhood as a whole mark her as a future Elder and as a future Dark Council member.

Her efforts in the Great Jedi War motivated and inspired Clan Naga Sadow. Without Ashia, CNS would have had a difficult time maintaining their efforts throughout the war. For her honor and skill as a leader, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Priest Ashia Kagan Keibatsu to the rank of Archpriest.

Warrior Vardar Fen'Amar Ordo: Warrior Vardar Fen'Amar Ordo performed without equal in the Great Jedi War. Destruction personified, Vardar single handedly destroyed over three hundred opponents in man to man combat. His prowess on the battlefield dominated the five lesser clans of the Dark Brotherhood and all came to fear the wrath of his lightsaber.

Having served as a Warrior for eleven months, Vardar's knowledge and power have far surpassed his current rank. For his domination of the Great Jedi War and his dedication to the Dark Brotherhood, I, Grand Master Sarin, elevate Warriar Vardar Fen'Amar Ordo to the rank of Sith Battlemaster.

Sith Battlemaster Raken

He had finished explaining it to them.

That they had come was nearly enough, but he had wanted to see their fear, or its absence, personally. Sarin looked at those seated before him around the elongated oval table. There had been reluctance, but they had come. All the Consuls listed to a degree in their chairs showing the signs of fatigue and injury. This had cost them like nothing before. The Clans had acclimated to internecine conflicts often proving as bloodless as they were pointless. This had been a real fight; the first for many.

And they had lost.

The Yuuzhan Vong, as they had come to be known, had crushed them utterly. The mighty Clans of the Brotherhood had but stained the treads of those who brokered power in its purest form. No negotiations. No compromise. No peace, but that found at the end of a sword. It was enough to make him believe they deserved extinction at the hands of those who had the will to shape the galaxy to their ends.

His own will had been tested many times. Sarin had questioned his reign as Grand Master and whether that time would have been better spent in solitary study of the Dark Side, rather than acting as mediator between those too spoiled to deserve what they had and too lazy to reach for more. He was amazed all of them had survived. But survival was their specialty.

Did they believe they served at the Grand Master's leave, or were they naïve enough to think he served at theirs?

Perhaps Cotelin was right about it having been a mistake to add them to the Council. But each had arrayed a cadre of loyalists and political constituents too often to which their power was owed. This he would amend in time. He wasn't entirely without his own supporters. The "now" was what concerned him. He would negotiate their cooperation in the interim by any means necessary. Including the promise of new ships to replace those they had lost to the Vong. How empty that promise would be would depend greatly on their level of cooperation. The real power would remain in his grasp at all times from now until the end of his reign. This was partially demonstrated by the quartet of new, Nebula-class Star Destroyers—state-of-the-art ships heavily modified by Verpine engineers—flanking them now. The vessels hung in space outside the viewports full of quiet menace. Still more waited on station though not fully operational. A show of force for the Consuls, most of whose fleets lay in near ruin. That the Destroyers were manned with skeleton crews would remain guarded until he had siphoned the personnel he needed from the disorganization sure to riddle the Clans for months to come.

Sarin wouldn't fully tip his hand here at this table. No, here he would placate and countenance until the swelling of their pride abated. He could afford no more Anteis. But his position was not unassailable. He had ships, yes—purchased with billions of credits embezzled from the Hammer and brokered by the Star Chamber—but he needed crews. He needed soldiers. Most of all, he needed their Jedi; that most precious of resources. Droids would only take him so far. The truth on the first day of the war was much the same as on the last.

They needed each other.

This they would see. If not, he would descend without warning from the abyss of hyperspace with his fleet and glass each and every world they called home. They would be in no position to stop him anytime soon. Especially not with the battered relics they quaintly referred to as "warships". Fear would keep them in line. Fear and the promise of more power: tools as old as the first stone knife, but as complex to wield as the lightsaber.

Things had changed, but the Brotherhood would go on. It had no choice. For the war was not actually over. They would need to quickly adapt their thinking and realize that what had transpired over the last week was not a war, but a battle. And a minor one at that. The war was out there, raging just past the stars he could see twinkling through the transparisteel. To the enemy, this had been nothing but another victory with a few insignificant losses. To Sarin and the Brotherhood, it had nearly ended their way of life.

He had scarcely scratched the surface of the mounting reports coming in from all Brotherhood assets. Ships lost, facilities destroyed, thousands dead, wounded or missing, his own Deputy Grand Master in critical condition; it was staggering. They had literally brought a stun baton to a blaster fight. Sarin still needed time to consider his own encounter with the enemy and apply the lessons learned there. There was more to accomplish now than there had ever been before.

Bloodfyre was the first to speak.

“Lord Sarin, how is Muz?”

This surprised Sarin. Was he that transparent? Did the Shaevalian wish to know out of genuine concern, or was this simply another surreptitious ploy to gauge the Dark Council’s current strength? And what of Muz and his experience onboard the alien vessel? When recovered, Sarin desperately needed to know what else he could tell the Brotherhood about its enemy. As well as the apparent confederate, Volngah, whose whereabouts were unknown. All Muz had managed to convey was that it was the Priest who had helped him escape.

This and more swirled through Sarin’s mind but he responded simply with, “Well.”

He could afford no weakness in front of them.

“How does the rest of the Dark Council fare?” This from the Plagueian. “I don’t see many of them here.”

More probing for weaknesses. Sarin considered shedding their blood here and now, but ever the tactician, said only, “Away. There is much work to be done if we are to survive and one day retake Antei.”

“Retake it?” Macron blurted, forgetting himself. “Why?” The Sadowite saw no reason to risk his forces further and, though he dare not voice it, he felt strongly that the Grand Master’s absence during nearly the entirety of the war had contributed significantly to the loss of the system.

Sarin’s eyes flashed, but he let the insult pass. He had been absent. Were he to have stayed though, even a Grand Master and his flagship would have made little difference to the outcome. Against such a foe, what was needed was time to discover their weaknesses, and ships to exploit them. Now he had both. For a while.

“Let me answer your question with one of my own: Who fears us now, Macron?” Sarin stood meeting the eyes of all assembled. Consuls, Councilors, and confidants alike, none had an answer. “Bloodfyre? Anyone? The answer is no one. No one fears us and rightly so. We are not the threat. Why will Antei be retaken? It will be retaken because if we who call ourselves Dark Jedi cannot hold onto what is ours, then all we hold to are false oaths,” Sarin said, voice modulating unnaturally. “And then our very existence would be a farce. We who so casually liken ourselves to the Sith Lords of old.”

Silence.

“But when we do retake it,” Sarin said, “against an enemy as powerful and ruthless as this, who then can deny our right to deliver the Final Way? Who then would not fear us?” Few met his eyes. “This is a trial, gentlemen. We will face it.”

Sarin sat down again observing them. Some he could read clearly, some with more difficulty. But all understood. He asked, “Are there more concerns then?” He knew there would be none...for now. “Another time then. You will find instructions waiting for you when you return to your ships. Do not fail me, gentlemen.”

They wouldn't.

Of this, there was no doubt.

Dark Council Unveils New Fleet

Grand Master Sarin

History

Ten years ago the Dark Brotherhood initiated operation Tempest Bravo. Intelligence operatives acting under the direct orders of Grand Master Firefox infiltrated Imperial logistical and financial centers. These agents, often Imperial Admirals, remained black for two years until they were activated hours before the Exodus. Acting under preset orders the infiltrators altered logistical supply routes and redirected financial payments to Dark Brotherhood assets. Within hours the operatives of Tempest Bravo laundered billions of Imperial credits to the Dark Brotherhood and secured our financial independence.

Following the initial successes of Tempest Bravo the program was shut down. The original agents were exfiltrated out of Imperial space and brought to Antei for extensive debriefing. During the debriefings it was determined that follow on operations could be conducted using Imperial defectors. Under the command of Dark Brotherhood Intelligence Tempest Bravo became active once again with Grand Master Cotelin personally serving as the case manager for all future defectors. Within months Grand Master Cotelin secured the defection of countless Imperial Admirals. In each instance these defecting Admirals would redirect assets under their command to the Dark Brotherhood coffers. The Capstone of Tempest Bravo came with the defection of then Sector Admiral Sarin who possessed nearly unlimited access to Imperial Remnant assets. The windfall of this final Tempest Bravo operation was the procurement of operational funds for four full Imperial battle groups.

In 24 ABY, Grand Master Cotelin positioned the Tempest Bravo funds into a Corporate Sector Authority (CSA) shell organization. The Corporate Sector Authority façade provided the means for Lord Cotelin to approach the Kuat Drive Yards (KDY) and begin negotiations for the creation of a new Dark Brotherhood Fleet. Within a month KDY and the falsified CSA organization had reached an arrangement for ten capital class warships to be constructed at the remote Xa Fel facilities.

Technology

In 26 ABY, now Grand Master Sarin secured the technological services of the Verpine. Transferring the recently completed Dark Brotherhood fleet to Roche, Grand Master Sarin ordered a complete technical upgrade to the new fleet. Two of these upgrades are now presented for the Dark Brotherhood. The classification of this material is secret/noforn.

STRADEF: The Verpine Generation two Strategic Defense (STRADEF) computer weapon system enables unparalleled defensive capabilities. This system projects a defensive radar globe around all craft equipped with STRADEF. When a foreign object enters the STRADEF defensive globe the Fleet automatically targets and fires the highest probable solution to destroy the foreign object.

Verpine EM1: The Verpine Electromagnetic (EM) Shield Package is a EM resistant defensive capability designed to withstand ion blasts and electromagnetic attacks. EM1 utilizes dissipation properties spread across a ship's exterior to defend against crippling EM attacks.

After ten years of planning and preparation the Dark Brotherhood has received the first ships that will make up her new fleet. The following ships have been cataloged by Dark Brotherhood logistics and are now made available to the general membership. The following is unclassified.

Shadow Academy Report

Dark Jedi Master Anshar

The Shadow Academy continues to undergo its process of constant change. Recently, SBM Dacien "BubbaX" Victae replaced OT Dranik Tarentae as Praetor to the Headmaster. "Dranik had some other things he had to take care of and we both felt that this change was for the best," said the Headmaster. Also joining the Shadow Academy staff as Eclectic Pedagogues are SW Dismal Visutor (Sith Alchemy) and KP Kara Zor-El (Krath Core). The previous Eclectic Pedagogues have moved onto other things in the Brotherhood.

Also, new courses either have been introduced or will be coming out in the future. A new starfighters course was released to replace the outdated ISET and ESET courses. One member has already received permission to write a history course of the Old Republic and the Headmaster has also put out a call for a volunteer to write a freighter and transport course so that all three primary categories of starships will be covered. "Originally, I intended to cut back on the number of courses, but demand from the membership has told me that we need to offer more than what we currently have," said the Headmaster.

Finally, in a project started by the new praetor, the Shadow Academy is in the process of developing topic based degrees. No details were forthcoming at this time; however BubbaX did state that the system would be rolled out in phases. "There's no set date for this, but if members watch the main news announcements, they will be kept up to date on the project's progress. We are trying our best not to drag it out."

Galactic Breaking News

Dark Voice Senior Correspondant Dismal Visutor

Core Worlds - The Dark Voice has monitored the transmissions of it's counterparts in the Core Systems, and brought you some of the items making news Galaxy Wide.

Coruscant Falls

Coruscant, the capital of the galaxy for thousands of years, has fallen to the monstrosities known to us as the "Yuuzhan Vong." Most of the galaxy at large considered the planet-wide city to be invincible, and that the New Republic would be a stable government for a long time to come. Not much else is known about the conquering of the 'Galactic City', other than the fact that the invaders have christened their prize Yuuzhan'tar.

Republic Chief of State Killed

The Chief of State of the New Republic, a Bothan named Borsk Fey'lya, has been reported and confirmed as dead. During the invasion of Coruscant, rumors report that an explosion destroyed a vast majority of the Imperial Palace, Fey'lya apparently located inside of the building. Gossip, originating from an unknown source, reveals that the Bothan had experienced an epiphany at a hearing of the New Republic Senate, and appeared slightly depressed.

Cal Omas Replaces Fel'lya

After the reported death of Borsk Fey'lya, the New Republic was in dire need of a new leader. Two people were nominated by the Senate – Cal Omas of Alderaan and Fyor Rodan of Commenor. The two had different views about how to end the Yuuzhan Vong war. Rodan had led the board in Senator votes for the initial voting. After gaining numerous endorsements, such as Cola Quis and Ta'laam Ranth, the last round of voting resulted in Omas's favor. Cal Omas was elected Chief of State with 85% of the votes.

Bothans Declare Ar'kai

For the first time in millennia, the Bothans at Bothawui have declared ar'kai, a genocidal war, upon the Yuuzhan Vong. The death of Chief of State Borsk Fey'lya sparked an intense hatred of the Yuuzhan Vong from the Bothans. During a state of ar'kai, all Bothans, fit or otherwise, were required to volunteer for military service. Ar'kai is only declared when an enemy threatened the Bothan people with extinction. During ar'kai, an enemy was to be repaid in kind. The enemy is to be destroyed to the last individual, their name is to be wiped from history, and their homeworld ground to dust. Only time will reveal the outcome of this total war.

New Republic Re-organizes

Rumors have surfaced that the new Chief of State of the New Republic, Cal Omas, has begun a grand re-organizing of the New Republic into what is being coined the "Galactic Federation of Free Alliances". As of the time of publication, we have been unable to confirm the details, however, we will bring you more on this immense change as it becomes available.

Rise of the YVH Vong Hunter Droid, 27 ABY; Droids prove Their Mettle

Dark Voice Correspondent Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow

DB Holonet, Antei - Events at large in the galaxy are taking a predictable turn, given the nature of the threats to the galaxy at large from the detestable Yuuzhan Vong. The Tendrando Arms Corporation under the guidance of Lando Calrissian has developed a new droid designed to combat the invaders. Designated the "YVH-1", or "Yuuzhan Vong Hunter One", the droid promises to be an effective weapon.

Scattered intelligence reports mention aquatic, vacuum, and other variants in use. The droid serves admirably in the War, and was spotted during the recent Fall of Coruscant. Apparently, a few of the droids were able to kill the Vong they encountered quite effectively. Initial tests against the filthy grey-skinned aliens show that the droids are effective.

They taunt the Vong in their own barbaric language, saying things like "We are machines! We are greater than the Yuuzhan Vong!" These insults are most effective at enraging the invaders and causing them to make mistakes. They also appear physically somewhat like a skeletal Vong, adding an eerie effect to their interaction with them in combat.

The droid unit is powerful on its own, sporting a variety of toys for the enthusiastic butcher. They carry a blaster analog in one arm, and can wield many other items such as an electro-ray discharger, thermal detonators, sonic rifles, coma gas, and mini-rockets. The sensor suite is superb, offering fine detail resolution and a search and find patterning that can detect Vong with ooglith masquers.

It would seem that Lando Calrissian's boasts that the droids are superior warriors than the Vong may be true. My own combat test against one was challenging, and the rate of fire from the blaster is high. They do not crush easily, and continue to keep fighting long after a living being would have passed out from shock. They are immune to poison, lack of oxygen, blood loss from severed limbs, and need no sleep. Truly, these are the stuff Vong nightmares are made of.

Rumor has it that the Dark Summit is in negotiations to purchase some of these units for the Brotherhood. Stay tuned to the Dark Voice for more details.

Vong Invasion on Other Fronts; New Republic

Dark Voice Correspondent Melkor

In the chaos of the Brotherhoods' efforts with the Vong, refreshing news leaked out from New Republic. According to leaks in their Intelligence some ground was gained over the Yuuzhan Vong with the loss of their world ship at a cost of the striped out super star destroyer Lusankya. The Republic has tried on several instances to retake Borleias in the Pyria System and took heavy losses in multiple skirmishes against the Yuuzhan Vong that held the system as well as defending off two other attempts to retake the system. This world was one of the staging points for the strikes on Coruscant from the Vong fleet costing the Republic a great many pilots in ship-to-ship engagements. The vessel was the sister ship the Executor. It had come into New Republic possession some years earlier after once being used as a private prison for Imperial Intelligence Chief Ysanne Isard, when it was buried under Coruscant shortly after its construction. After Isard's death, the vessel was adopted into New Republic service and served for nearly two decades, and at times used as medical research facility due to it being designed with quarantine containment areas on board her. As well being a major piece in multiple battles over the course of her service as well as this final engagement.

The report stated the vessel was liberated of its armament and rearmed with massive amounts of explosives in the vessels prow to create what was intended to be a explosives enhanced battering ram and on top of its redone armor making it far better than vessels of her class in Imperial service, and after the weapons that were aboard were refitted onto various other New Republic ships in their fleet such as the Errant Venture. It was one of the largest and most heavily hit vessels that was involved in the Republics' stand on the Pyria system, and it was to be used in a in a final suicide mission supposedly code-named "Operation Emperor's Spear". Eldo Davip a New Republic Commander piloted the massive nineteen kilometer vessel that was rigged with slave circuits and escorted but several squadrons of elite pilots guarding her as she prepared to collide into the Yuuzhan Vong worldship before abandoning the vessel to see both vessels destroyed as the New Republic fleet withdrew in the devastation of the two massive vessels. The battle mainly served to by time for the civilians and scientists to be evacuated from Borleias, and as well buy time for the refugees from Coruscant to escape giving the Republic the chance to recover from the loss of its capital world.

Clan Rumors

Dark Voice Correspondent Anonymous

Rumors are surfacing at this hour that Macron Sadow may've accidentally subjected members of his own clan to Alchemical Research. While no names were available, the reports indicate several high ranking members of the clan have been mutated, leaving some to wonder if these were in fact 'mistakes' at all.

Reports are becoming available indicating Clan Plagueis is unable to properly train it's members in the use of the lightsaber, causing a sky-rocket in lightsaber accidents. No Plagueis was available for comment.

Life expectancy of Ewoks in the Brotherhood is unusually short, researchers claim. Social scientists are at work right now to determine why. Some have postulated that Brotherhood members may not "like" Ewoks. However, a conflicting theory is that they have been used for alchemical experiments by an unnamed Clan.

State of the Clans

Dark Voice Senior Correspondent Dismal Visitor

During the hour of Hell the Dark Brotherhood experienced, known simply as the Battle of Antei to the Dark Brethren, the Brotherhood suffered a number of losses, sending a strong punch to the Brotherhood's gut.

The awards ceremony had just been concluded when the initial attack begun. People were ordered to return to their clan's fleet elements at once. A fleet, which consisted of totally alien ship designs and classes, had dropped out of hyperspace just outside of Antei. No one needed to be told – the fleet's intention was hostile.

Commanding the Brotherhood's forces, at the deck of the Victory-class Star Destroyer Vae Victus, was none other than the Shadow Hand and Deputy Grand Master Muz Keibatsu Sadow. He thought quickly, ordering all six clans to assume positions. The clans did as they were told, and fought valiantly against the unknown enemy, now known to us as the Yuuzhan Vong.

The battle against the adversary lasted for an entire six days. The stress of combat was almost too much for the Dark Jedi Brotherhood's clans to handle – rivalries from the days of old broke out into a civil war in the midst of a war.

The total confirmed casualties are as follows: the Vae Victus, the Dark Prophet of Taldryan, the Eye of the Abyss of Arcona, the Emperor's Sword of Scholae Palatinae, thousands of starfighters, and the most devastating loss, the Dark Brotherhood's flagship, the Autarch. The Autarch is a capital ship of custom design, the brainchild of none other than Headmaster emeritus Spears Tarentae. The ship had a great armament, including a TIE starfighter wing, 12 Lambda-class shuttles, 20 stormtrooper transports, 15 assault gunboats, several Skipray Blastboats, 6 Gamma-class assault shuttles, numerous repair-and-recovery vehicles, 40 AT-AT walkers and barges, 60 AT-ST walkers, various ground vehicles, 16, 500 infantry units, and a prefabricated garrison base, all of which were lost when the ship exploded.

There may have been very many other casualties, but not all information that is not confirmed can be trusted in a time of war. Time will only tell how the Brotherhood will recover from these losses...

Plagueis Rewards It's Own - Dismal Awarded Sapphire Blade, BubbaX Promoted to Sith Warlord

Sith Battlelord Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar

Consul Dupar stood in front of his clan, now safely back within the confines of the Jusadih System, away from the peril of the Yuuzhan Vong. Despite the fact that the Vong had attacked Jusadih as well, they were gone by the time he had managed to reach his home. Now, on Kapsina, the broken ranks of Clan Plagueis stood in the hall of the Dark Tower, awaiting the news from their Consul.

For the past hour, he had been debriefing the clan on what had happened, and preparing them for the future at hand. With Aerun and Nintura completely mutilated by the Vong, and Shintera severely damaged, their system was in turmoil, and it would take much to bring it back in balance. Yet, after all the seemingly bad news that had passed from the Battlelord's lips, there was a light.

The Human cleared his throat as he paused for a second, "Plagueis, I come now to announce two pieces of good news. For, while we were defeated and broken, we stood strong against these foe. Many of you showed your loyalty this past week, but some of you showed extreme loyalty."

"That is why, after consulting with my fellow leaders, I have two wonderful announcements to make. First, for outstanding service to the clan during this recent conflict, helping us survive on many an occasion, I hereby announce the promotion of BubbaX to Sith Warlord"

The room erupted in applause as BubbaX stood, shocked yet extremely gleeful. "Come, Warlord, and receive your honors."

BubbaX walked up to the podium, and exchanged pleasantries with his Consul.

"Secondly," Aabs continued as Arcadian took the crystal, bowed, and returned to the crowd, which continued to applaud him, "I have another award, for one of our most dedicated of dedicated members. For over the past few months, this person has not only showed extremely loyalty and bravery during our recent conflict, but he has also showed extremely useful work as a leader of the clan. For his work for Plagueis, and his courage while imprisoned by the Yuuzhan Vong, I hereby award Sith Warrior Dismal Visutor with a Sapphire Blade."

Pulling the blue blade from his robes, Aabs held it high as the crowd again erupted into cheers, with a select few staying still. As Dismal walked towards the podium to claim his award, Aabsdu looked out at the clan he led, and knew that it would all work out.

Naga Sadow Pre-invasion Report

Dark Jedi Knight Imperial

Recent events have unfolded a string of uprisings and uproars within the clan.

First of all CNS Counsel member, Manesh, steps down. A surprising move throwing those who weren't "gell'n" for a loop! He wrote that he had a great time, but the brotherhood just wasn't the way he remembered it. His goal had been to shape and mold the young members into his vision of the future for the brotherhood, something any Dark Jedi really does really, however he could only go so far. I for one can speak for this time of participation and not only wining ...fun times, and come to think of it, it seemed like more members were around then. Then again I was more under the radar and hiding in the shadows so perhaps that's what many members are currently doing. He did a great job while he served and I for one will miss his fun Slurpees and M&Ms debates! But I guess in his "retirement" or rather his "leave" he will have plenty of time for these things! I even hear some new Slurpee flavours are coming out in the universe, so good luck with that! And should the force guide you back to the DJB don't forget who the best clan is!

In his resignation Manesh has given the position over to Macron, who recently got accepted into the ranks of the Sons of Sadow and now has a fancy big long name. You know one of those names where you can say something like, "I'll get it done faster than you can say...." and actually be able to get it done in the time you say it! But in all seriousness congrats SBL Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow. But then again I probably have to say that anyway, considering he is my master! I mean, anything to get him to ease up in training is great! However, knowing him, this will probably be a power trip to his head, and his lessons will be swifter and harsher! He is a great Dark Jedi stereo type come to think of it!

As I walk the halls of the DJB and listen in on conversations...Overhear conversations, I notice a big trend in topics discussed. The Clan is all in a buzz, well the whole Brotherhood really, as everyone prepares for the 7th Great Jedi War! A time of fun, and work, and trying to elevated Clan Naga Shadow to the top! Shouldn't be too hard, after all we gave them a run for their money last summer, coming in and wining second place. This year Clan Naga Shadow has made an alliance with Clan Taldryn. Yes it's odd to mention Dark Jedi having an alliance but I can imagine this will work for both sides until one starts to get the upper hand, and then we shall see how Taldryn takes it. I mean then we shall see what will happen.

On a scientific note, recent explorations, and studies, have given the news that some Vong were spotted on Sepros. Truly unusual, and not really expected, but the sightings were a welcomed discovery. This is shown in the one main knowledge that we can say about the Vogue, that they are apparently great for test subjects (keep that in mind all of you looking to create a new species). These creatures are not very force sensitive and live by technology. More can be found on this by CNS New Counsel Macron's article. Ya I know! I just had to mention it, but like I said before he's my master and if I don't, I know sleep will not be an easy task.

In closing I want to prepare you for what may be around the corner for the Clan in the future. As we see from recent events leadership can change in what may appear over night, and who knows, perhaps we will just win the 7th Great Jedi War! Look at me! What am I saying, perhaps, hardly! We will open up a can a WHOOP ASS, empty it, throw the can at the competition and then steal their own cans of WHOOP ASS just to bring it back on them! So prepare your selves for the fight of rights for CNS!

The Pulse of the People

As members of the Dark Jedi Brotherhood, we are over the course of our careers, often subjected to issues that we disagree with, strongly support, or otherwise feel very passionately about. The Dark Voice would like to encourage you, the members of the Brotherhood, to tell us about the issues you feel strongly about.

If theres an issue currently affecting you in the Brotherhood, please tell us about it. There are many methods available to us, including Investigational Reporting, editorial opinions, and more! So, send us in your issues, and let us report the news!

Editor-in-Chief's Address

Dark Voice Editor-in-Chief, Derev Niroth

As Dark Voice Tribune, my primary mission is of course to publish the Dark Voice. When I was first given the reigns of the Dark Voice, I really had no idea what I was getting myself into. Today, the course I've set myself upon is a little easier to see, and the work involved is beginning to be more rewarding.

As I began to develop my "vision" of the Dark Voice, two primary items came up again and again. Shifting to an "in-character" perspective, and bringing the fictional world of the Star War's Universe into focus with that of the timeline of the Dark Jedi Brotherhood. Also, I promised the Brotherhood a new layout for the Dark Voice, as well as Standards of Publication, Submission Guidelines, and a functional staff.

I'm pleased to report that all of these items have now been realized. Thanks to countless hours from myself, and the dedication of several members of my staff, my vision of the Dark Voice has been (mostly) realized. In this issue, you'll find nearly every article is "in-character", and you'll notice several aspects of the issue that tie into the Star Wars timeline. With the nature of this publication, not every article will be able to be in-character, as is evident from a few articles. As Editor-in-Chief, I am okay with this. Moving forward, the new layout is here. I don't know how yet it'll be perceived, and I'm open to comments and suggestions from the masses. If you follow the links at the top of the website, you'll find the main Dark Voice Website, where you can find the Standards of Publication, Submission Guidelines, and the Mission Statement.

I've also used my authority as Tribune to create to auxillary leadership positions within the Dark Voice. Senior Correspondant and Senior Editor. These members will help with the burden of getting all the work done around the office, but more importantly, will slowly begin to learn the full ins and outs of the Dark Voice, and it is my hope that when the day comes that I leave Dark Voice Tribune, one of these two people will be able to take my job, with no interruptions in Dark Voice Operations.

Jedi Hunter Kazarelth has been Senior Editor since I created it unofficially as a test, and has continued in that role now that it is official. Sith Warrior Odin Vaaj took the first slot as Senior Correspondant, and with his unfortunate resignation, it's my pleasure today to announce that Sith Warrior Dismal Visutor will continue onward as the new Senior Correspondant.

In the end, i'm very proud of this issue of the Dark Voice, and while I'm very aware there is more work to be done, I think this is a huge step forward for the Dark Voice. As always, I'd like to thank my staff for the hard work they continue to put into this, and of course you, the readers of the Dark Voice, for which this is all possible.

One quick issue I wanted to address was the re-setting of the Volume. Traditionally, each Volume is 6 issues, ranging through one year. However, with the information released in my Tribune Report - primarily that of restructuring the Volume to eight issues, as well as this issue being the "new start" for the new vision of the Dark Voice, I felt it appropriate to restart a new volume with this issue.

Important Note About This Issue

Dark Voice Editor-in-Chief, Derev Niroth

This issue takes a drastic departure from the traditional "layout" of the Dark Voice. You will no longer find "every" article all linked to one page. The stories making the front page are just that - front page articles. Each category (linked to from the top of every page), has a full page of many more articles. For ease of reading, there is an "index" of the articles, located at the bottom of the Front Page.

The Dark Voice is published for the Dark Jedi Brotherhood under the authority granted to the Dark Voice Tribune by the Iron Throne. The Dark Voice Tribune is the "Editor-in-Chief" of the Dark Voice, and all decisions pertaining to the Dark Voice are the final authority of the Dark Voice Tribune, per the authority granted him by the Grand Master. Any issues, comments, or complaints about the Dark Voice should therefore be sent to the Dark Voice Tribune, and/or the Grand Master.

The content, views, and opinions presented in this publication are not necessarily those of the Grand Master, the Dark Council, or any leader of the Dark Jedi Brotherhood, nor are they the views or opinions of the Dark Voice Tribune. The Dark Voice publishes a wide variety of works, and any submission meeting our Standards of Publication and Mission Statement may be published.

The Epic Serial Novel of the Dark Voice

Appeared in Volumn 4, Issue 2 of the Dark Voice

Chapter One of the Epic of Ducant

Dark Voice Serial Writer Timeros

It is with a great sense of remorse that the Dark Voice must report that Krath Epis Timeros, the author of the "Epic of Ducant", is Missing in Action, directly relating to the Vong Invasion. We are hopeful that Timeros is alive, and merely out of contact with the Brotherhood. We are, therefore, presenting the Prologue to the Epic of Ducant once again, for your reading pleasure.

Epic of Ducant

By KAP Timeros Caesus Entar

Prologue:

A Prophecy Denied:

And they think the righteous path is hard to walk.

Aurelio was only vaguely aware of his amusement as he stood on the landing pad, watching dark clouds gather above him. Already, he could hear the clap of thunder in the distance, and from his vantage point on top of the Storm House, he could see a torrent of rain disturb Terushin Lake some miles off, dark shores rippling under the unleashed fury of the elements. Soon, the House would once again be ravaged by its namesake, a thunderstorm let loose to form its voltage-laden crown.

As much as any being filled with darkness could be, Aurelio felt...in touch with the world around him. He felt as though he were the unchained force of the elements itself, the powerful gale blowing his way, the heavy clouds reflecting themselves in his soul. He made no secret of his admiration for the world once named Ruch but now named more aptly after its owner...Ducant.

A ripple of amusement traveled over the weathered man's face. Of course I admire this planet. I chose it as my share of the conquest, after all.

He grimaced at the memories...sporadic saber-flashes and fallen foes cascading through his mind in an infinitely repeated series of battles as his thoughts wandered towards that glorious time...the last Great Jedi War, or –as the Commonwealth called it- the fifth Pan-Galactic War. They were memories he cherished, memories of younger days. For despite now being in his sixties, Aurelio Ducant had once stood among the greatest warriors of the Brotherhood, a master of many saber forms and recipient of the Order of Dinistr. His exploits had earned him this planet...and had allowed him to start his own house...Ducant.

Those days, of course, were past. The Quaestor stared at his lightsaber absentmindedly, finger on the activation switch. He had changed...once a warrior, Aurelio was now nearing his sixties and had chosen a more cerebral path. Powerful with the Force and agile in mind, a ruler of his world, a general...and a bureaucrat. And along with that his saber had changed function, turning from a weapon to a badge of office. While the aging man still practiced with it almost daily, it had been over fifteen years since he had last activated the weapon in anger.

Today, however, that would change. Within the Storm House, a woman was giving birth to a child. Promises had been made following Lyra's pregnancy...and they would have to be broken if House Ducant was to survive unscathed.

The wavefront of irritation hit the fore of Aurelio's mind at the same instant as the first drops of rain, both swelling rapidly. With an annoyed, almost subconscious motion of his hand, the Adept called upon the Force, bending aside the droplets and thus remaining dry and untouched within the heart of the storm. It was a waste of energy, perhaps...but with the man he was about to face, the Queastor preferred not to be slowed by rain-soaked clothes. And yet while he could stop the tide of rain, he could not stop from feeling...old.

The man stared down as the water pooled into a miniature lake at his feet, reflection staring back at him. While far from a withered man, his face was already wrinkling, and his wiry, angular appearance seemed suddenly weak, wavy black hair now tainted by streaks of gray. A respectable image, perhaps, but also a continuous reminder of the youth he had lost.

Get a hold of yourself, Aurelio, the Adept reminded himself sternly. This was not a time for introspection.

A flash of recognition, an unmistakable footprint above the world's atmosphere, Aurelio's Force-enhanced senses...it all came together within moments.

Jedi Master Luran Norrik had just arrived on Ducant.

Minutes ticked idly by as the ship parked itself carefully, unchallenged by the planet's defensive systems, approaching the Storm House at a pace that seemed leisurely but was, in fact, merely careful.

Had Aurelio been so inclined, he could have ordered the orbital defenses, the defensive fighter groups, and the ground-based turrets to swivel their guns towards the Kuati fightercraft and shower it with a rain of blaster bolts. But that would only drive away the Jedi Master to try again later, rather than lure him in. And besides, it was unlikely that any number of defenses could stop the Jedi Master. One in league with the Force, the Adept had reasoned, was better challenged by a more personal touch.

The craft swooped from the clouds, its sharp colors illuminated by flashes of thunder, giving a sharp outline of blaster cannons and proton torpedo launchers, unchanging weapons of war that had persisted for thousands of years, and likely would for thousands more. The design had not varied much from the original X-Wing, differing only in being slightly larger and having its wings spread out somewhat more, so as to better shoot targets at longer ranges.

For all the fury of the storm, the ship touched down almost gently, repulsors gliding smoothly across the landing pad and causing ripples on the rapidly accumulating body of water, disturbing its starry reflection of the lights that illuminated the Storm House's roof.

The fighter's cabin opened, revealing the truth behind Aurelio's feelings...Norrik, Jedi Master and member of the Council. The Adept watched him, felt the apprehension dawn within the Jedi Master as he climbed out of his fighter and turned to face the waiting Quaestor.

Norrik's powerful build, sporting broad shoulders and bulging muscles, was almost Aurelio's antithesis. While actually slightly older than Aurelio, the Jedi Councilor had never truly settled down, continuing his quest to right wrongs.

Or, Aurelio thought in amusement, whatever it is they think they're doing.

"Aurelio, this place is even more misery-tainted than before," The Master's voice was cool and considerate, undisturbed by the hostility the other knew he was radiating. Aurelio had not offered to shield him from the rain, and the Luran had not requested it, showing that he too was aware of the hostility that permeated the air like so much poison.

"Luran," Aurelio nodded calmly. He noticed that the Jedi Master held one hand discreetly inside his robes. So, Norrik had come prepared.

"The child is being born right now." It was a statement, not a question...a subtle hint that Norrik, too, could feel the child's mental screams as the echoed across the Storm House.

"Yes," Aurelio nodded. "Within the next half hour or so, Ducant will have a new son. Wyatt will be pleased."

The Master nodded at the words, knowing of Aurelio's pride in his family...and his relief. For while Adamer, the Quaestor's oldest son, had fathered no less than seven children, his younger son had none. None, at least, until now.

"Good. Let us go inside, then." Norrik moved step towards the turbolift that could take him to inside the Storm House...only to be stopped by a solid wall of hardened air, crafted by the Force.

"No."

To his credit, the Councilor did not seem at all surprised when he turned towards Aurelio, who had now let go of his telekinetic hold of the rain, letting it almost instantly soak both men. "You know the prophecy as well as I do, Aurelio. The eldest child of Ducant's youngest son, to be born in darkness and raised in the light. The child must come with me."

"The prophecy be damned!" Aurelio spat, eyes blazing with sudden fury. "I will not give away my grandson to be raised by a bunch of bleeding hearts at the Order!"

Norrik cocked an eyebrow. “Why not? Someone as...pragmatic as you should surely appreciate the mutual benefits of the deal. You get your advantage against Clan Tedronai...and we, the certainty that the Brotherhood will not expand into our space. Why pass for such an opportunity?”

Rather than answer, Aurelio just smiled in cruel amusement. “Listen to yourself talk...how can you possibly pretend to still be on the Light Side? You should have joined us long ago, with that attitude.”

“My conscience is clean,” the Master replied sternly. “I will do whatever I must to safeguard the Commonwealth, as you do with your House.” Even, rang the unspoken context, deal with each other.

“Well,” the Quaestor shrugged, “the deal is off.”

“I cannot let you do this,” Norrik warned, extending his arm and revealing his lightsaber, blade not yet extended but the threat implicit. “You cannot stop fate.”

“Well...” Aurelio mentally loosened his robes, shedding the soaked fabric to reveal loose combat attire, saber dangling from his belt. “If the prophecy really is as powerful as you think it is, you should have no problem going through me.”

Not three feet apart, the men faced off, the taller Jedi Master watching the Adept, both flexing their muscles both mental and physical in anticipation of the conflict.

Perhaps to both men’s surprise, it was Norrik who struck first, indigo saber flashing to life and moving in a wild, counterclockwise swing that would bring its tip squarely across Aurelio’s throat.

Rather than activate his own saber to deflect the blow, Aurelio summoned the Dark Side, channeling its energies into a sharp jab at the Master’s arm and slamming his saber back out again, to careen wildly in Norrik’s outstretched arm. A surge of strength brought the saber back on its course, yet before that, the Quaestor had already stepped within the Councilor’s circle of defense, his own weapon flying telekinetically into his hand, thumbing the activation switch to turn the empty hilt into a blade of incandescent fury...

Too late. Even as the crimson gout of flame burst forth, the Jedi Master’s prescient mind had sensed the danger and his free hand shot out, grabbing Aurelio’s saber arm and twisting it sideways, so that the glistening weapon cut no deeper than the edge of his robes.

Even as Aurelio twisted in his grip, the Jedi reversed his grip on the blade and swung it without letting go of his adversary, turning his body and making a blind, reverse lunge at the Adept.

In desperation, the Quaestor summoned upon the Dark Side again, feeling its slick, oily touch taint his mind as he hardened air to create a telekinetic barrier as solid as duracrete, then set it moving with all the speed he could muster.

The wall slammed into the Master, and he was forced to let go of the Dark Jedi as he was catapulted into the air and off the landing pad, lightsaber spinning uncontrollably as it was released from its owner’s grip.

Aurelio did not even attempt to follow up, relieved to have some distance between them. Luran, after all, would have to finish this quickly. A protracted battle would tire him too much to face the other Dark Jedi living within the Storm House, not to mention that the battle waged on the rooftops could motivate them to help their patriarch. Aurelio, on the other hand, had no such pressure, nor would he have to keep any of his strength in reserve for other comers.

The Master, too, seemed to realize this as he focused his own strength with the Force, lifting up the downpour on the angled rooftop while he was still airborne and concentrating it beneath him to soften his fall. Before he had even landed, his lightsaber was already firmly within his hand, reflecting across the torrent of rain like an indigo halo.

Before Norrik could gain his bearings, however, the Quaestor's malevolent energy had had concentrated themselves around him, rearranging molecules, breaking bonds and inducing energy...

And suddenly the Councilor was trapped within a blazing cloud of steam, heat threatening to literally cook him alive.

This time, it was Luran who drew deeply from the Force, letting the scorching heat enter him and redirecting it, not struggling but accepting the energies that raged through him, taking them in fully, while finding his footing on the tilted rooftop. Only seconds later he released the energies and took to the air, a human missile shooting out and back upon the landing pad.

A telekinetic wave shot out to meet the Jedi Master, but this time Norrik had come prepared, mind briefly interrupting Aurelio's command of the Dark Side. The barrier dissipated, and the Councilor's feet again touched the pad. He wasted further time in disrupting the other's strength and immediately charged saber poised for the kill. Across the pad, Aurelio too raised his saber, one hand outstretched in a classic dueling position while the other shot forth a deadly arc of Force lightning, attempting to slow the Master's advance.

Norrik caught the electric storm on his saber, dissipating it harmlessly, but grinding his movement almost to a halt...and that was something he could not allow to happen. With another Force-charged movement, he leapt forward, finally bringing their weapons to contact.

Indigo clashed with crimson, sight distorted by the ever-present screen of rain as sparks shot off their blades. Neither combatant spoke, too engrossed in the to and fro of their struggle.

Once again, the Jedi Master seized the initiative, striking hard and fast to keep Aurelio on the defensive, pressing as hard as he could without overly exerting himself. The Adept, too, fought with all the vigor and power he could muster, each blow backed by the Force and his own tremendous skill to create a glowing barrier through which no saber, not even Norrik's, could penetrate.

And that was, ironically, the one weakness in his defense. He had been too absorbed with defense, too preoccupied by halting blow after blow to feel the Councilor's sudden attack loom in the distance...and so when Luran struck a high, overhead blow, his weapon went up to defend himself...and he could do nothing to stop the Master from kicking him in the face.

Pain erupted from the Dark Jedi's face, sharp and clear, as if Norrik had lodged a dagger in his skull, blood flowing freely from his broken nose. Aurelio tumbled back and onto the angled rooftop, sliding down rapidly towards the edge with the Jedi Master following eagerly, saber outstretched and poised to strike down the groaning Adept.

Aurelio hit the drainage pipe at the building's side with a metallic clang, struggling with the Dark Side to keep conscious. Yet there was no way he could possibly bring his lightsaber to bear in time to stop a lethal blow.

And so, he forewent his weapon in favor of a more crude method, mind forming a solid, telekinetic blow...and striking down hard at the rooftop that separated them.

The effects were immediate. A circular section of the roof, almost twenty feet in diameter, gave way, splintered to pieces under the force of the Quaestor's attack. Aurelio, 'downstream' from the hole, was safe, needing only to brace himself against the shaking remains of the roof.

Norrik was not as lucky. The Jedi Master skidded directly into the hole, crashing into the wall below, and then tumbling further down, his lightsaber seeming curl into itself all the thirty feet of the fall before finally disappearing.

The Councilor hit the ground with a dull 'thud'.

For a moment, Luran's life essence seemed to dull and Aurelio's heart leapt in victory. The next, however, he again jumped to his feet, saber activating as he bolted for one of the doors...ready to look for the child.

The Adept hurled himself across the edge as rain, having finally found a way in, seeped into the building. His eyes scanned the floor plan of the lower building...a conference room, meant to receive visitors, lit by jutting lights from the sides and with a conference table in its center. It offered a magnificent view of the surrounding landscape, and it was easy to reach from the landing pad by a single turbolift...but most importantly, it had only a single access door to the rest of the Storm House. A blast door with an easily defensible corridor behind it, the perfect defense should negotiations turn awry.

As such, when the Jedi reached the door and pressed the datapad to open it, there was no reaction at all save an angry mechanical tone.

And at that moment, a plan dawned to the Adept's mind.

Nearing the azimuth of his descent, he grabbed onto one of the lights adorning the wall, legs struggling to maintain some form of footing while his one free hand pocketed his lightsaber. And, as Norrik stabbed the door with his saber in an attempt to melt through six inches of durasteel, Aurelio focused, drawing the Force around him inward.

Deeper and deeper he drew, waves of the Force cascading within his being until his very soul felt as if on fire, the pain of his broken nose only adding to the fury he needed to achieve the pinnacle of his power, skin crackling from the blasphemous energies roiling through him. Even Luran paused at the unimaginable energies surging through the Adept and turned to face him, ready for any attack the Aurelio might bring to bear on him...

But when the Quaestor finally released the attack, it was not focused upon the Jedi.

At least, he grimaced, inwardly wincing from the exertion, not directly.

Luran felt...surprise, more than anything, at the sudden gust of wind picking up, wind that the roof should protect him from...and it was only when his danger sense started flaring instants later that he realized the roof was no longer there. Instead, rushing towards him was a blanket of water, its matter rearranged by the Adept's command of the Dark Side.

With a growl, the Master took to the air, launching himself through the watery curtain perhaps half a second before it hit the floor...and a good thing, too, for an instant later lightning erupted from Aurelio's hand, electrifying the miniature lake that now lay at his feet.

Desperate to find his footing, the Jedi Master reached out...and grabbed, telekinetically, his fightercraft, moving himself on top of it and keeping it aloft, succeeding only through prescience and the Force at keeping it hovering above the floor, water now almost a foot deep and rapidly swelling. The sudden expansion of matter had first thrown it into the air and as such would have crashed slightly later. It proved to be the Jedi Master's salvation...at least for a time.

Time, Aurelio smiled fiercely, to finish this.

He pushed off from the wall, saber flying to his hand as his trajectory brought him towards the fighter.

There were three steps separating Norrik from the edge.

Snap-hiss! The saber flashed to life once more, its hum a Doppler scream of many tones. The Jedi Master blocked the strike but stepped back to allow himself some space, too distracted by the effort of keeping the fighter airborne to properly concentrate on the battle.

One.

Without pausing, Aurelio followed through, retracting the weapon and stabbing low, forcing the Jedi Master to backstep once again at the expense of opening himself to a lethal blow. Luran took the opportunity readily, saber moving in a tight arc, ready to behead the careless Adept.

Two.

Aurelio dropped, flat, onto the fighter's metal cabin, letting go of his saber as he did. And, as the Jedi's weapon missed him by inches, the crimson-hued blade went up with a wild, telekinetic stab at the Master, who had no choice but to jump back and away from the fightercraft, into the water.

Three.

Aurelio's lightning flew forth from his hands and hit the watery surface even before Norrik did, electrifying the water as triumph surged through the Dark Adept.

And, when Luran finally fell into the water, his screams, too, sent a wave of pleasure through the Quaestor's mind. While he managed to remain standing, the closed circuit of his flesh with the water was all the Dark Jedi needed. Smoke crackled and swirled upwards from the Councilor's mauled body and burnt robes as Aurelio continued, keeping the fighter aloft to shield himself from the effects.

He kept it going for several more seconds...and then released both the fighter and his electric assault, watching Luran topple sideways to crash into the water, floating almost gently across the improvised lake, its peaceful visage disturbed only by the horrible burns across the Master's body. This time, he did not get up.

At last the blast door opened, draining the water away as two figures stepped forward, moving rapidly towards the Quaestor...Adamer and Wyatt Ducant, his sons.

"My children," Aurelio nodded at Adamer but raised an eyebrow at Wyatt, for while Adamer had been requested to remain within the corridor, ready to defend the house should Luran emerge victorious, he had not expected Wyatt to join him...not during such a pivotal time for his nascent child.

"Father," Wyatt responded without reacting to the raised eyebrow, and taking a careful step. Something crunched underneath his feet...the Jedi Master's lightsaber. "He still lives."

"Indeed," Adamer nodded. "He is not dead...not yet." Without another word, Ducant's eldest child activated his lightsaber...and then paused in utter horror.

But it was nothing compared to the sudden dread that befell Aurelius. When he reached for the Force... it was suddenly not there, interdicted by a screen of light seemingly miles wide and bright, so agonizingly bright...

"Opposites," the Jedi Master's voice was slurred; his face a horrible tableau of lightning-wrought scorchs and wrinkles. "Opposites...attract."

He got up slowly. "They attract...and then...they mutually annihilate." To the cue, the gleaming wall of light moved closer to Aurelio's mind, causing a searing pain within the Adept's very soul. "Right now, I cannot feel the Force...and neither can you, Ducant. If I touch you, you will never be able to use the Force again."

"Bastard," Aurelio snarled. "This is a ploy of desperation, born from weakness...a pathetic trick."

"Hand over the child," the Master replied coolly, unimpressed by the insult.

"Fool," the Quaestor snarled. "Even if I did say yes...do you think Wyatt would give up his only child for me? You might annihilate my ability to use the Force. You might even be able to kill me without your weapon. But you will never leave this room alive if you do."

"Go home," the Adept continued his taunt, seeing Adamer stare straight ahead at the starfighter...and concentrating in the telltale way that implied use of the Force. "The prophecy is over."

“It cannot be over,” Norrik said softly, still full of determination as he stepped back, climbing into the fighter. “The prophecy will come about one way or the other...even you cannot stop fate.”

“That’s what you said before we started fighting.” Aurelio’s tone was now openly scornful. “You lost... destiny is not set in stone by Oracles. It is set by the strong!”

“Of course,” the Jedi Master admitted, as the cabin closed itself. “And fate is stronger than you. Also, a warning...I can activate this...ploy, as you called it, from orbit, now that we have made connection. You would be wise to not send any fighters after me if you wish to continue enjoying the perks of your power. And...”

Luran smiled, just before the cabin closed completely. When the Adept heard his voice again, it came through a speaker on the fighter’s side. “I wonder what the Iron Throne will say once they see the evidence recorded in this starfighter’s sensors...evidence showing you consort with Jedi.”

With a roar, Wyatt activated his lightsaber, jumping forward as if to bore through the fighter’s plasteel window, but he was already too late. With a titanic roar of engines, the fighter blasted from the ruined room, leaving the three Dark Jedi far behind in its rapid ascent to orbit.

And, as Aurelio felt the screen of light thin about him, he turned towards eldest son. “Did it work?”

“Perfectly,” Adamer nodded, turning towards the sky and watching it flash with lightning, roaring like some great beast that yearned to be fed.

“What worked?” Wyatt inquired impatiently as he, too, turned along with Aurelio. “I felt you reach towards his ship...but what did you do?”

Adamer bared his teeth in something less than a smile. “While our Jedi Master spent his time blocking father’s access to the Force, I changed a few things within his ship...specifically within the drive.

“As you know, every starship needs an inertial dampener to withstand the accelerations of modern space combat. After all, if we did not have it we would soon be turned into the closest possible human approximation of strawberry jam. Even,” now, Adamer did smile. It was not a pleasant sight. “a Jedi Master.”

“Oh, no...” Adamer’s smile was quietly satisfied. “I only tinkered with it a little. It works sufficiently to protect him –and his ship- for most realspace maneuvers. But the moment he enters hyperspace...”

He did not need to finish his explanations for suddenly, the sky lit up in a particularly bright flash of lightning, followed moments later by an explosive sound wave that seemed to rock the very foundations of the Storm House.

Aurelio smiled in satisfaction.

And, deep within the bowels of the Storm House, a child was born.

The Brotherhood Honors It's Fallen

Dark Voice Editor-in-Chief Derev Niroth
Dark Voice Senior Correspondent Dismal Visutor

The Dark Jedi Brotherhood is home to us all. Each of us, at one point or another, started out simply as another entry in a database, a new prospect given little chance of surviving this weird and wonderful world we all now call home. Many of us begin life long relationships in this club, I myself have built friendships in real life that started within the bounds of the Dark Brotherhood. As with all things in real life, sometimes tragedy strikes. By the very nature of our club, it's almost impossible to know what happens to each and every member of our club. No one knows how many members we may have lost over time, of which news never reached the Brotherhood.

However, as this world would have it, occasionally we do learn the fate of our members, and on July 23rd, the Brotherhood learned of the tragic, untimely loss of Krath Priest Baron Zarco. It is a sharp reminder that even in our beloved online world, the fell touch of death and tragedy can not be wholly escaped.

I never had the privilege to get to know Baron Zarco, in fact I had very little interaction with him at all. It is at times like this that we are reminded about how short life can be, and perhaps this event will change how I interact with other members of the Brotherhood.

On May 29th, Baron Zarco sent in an article to the Dark Voice. Somehow, this article was missed, and only came to light by sheer chance as I was preparing this tribute. When searching through my inbox for the information I needed for my introduction, I found a story written by Baron Zarco.

It is now my distinct pleasure to publish this, the final work of Baron Zarco to be shared with the Dark Jedi Brotherhood. Below his work is a gathering of tributes, thoughts, and memories from those who served with Baron Zarco in his career in the Dark Brotherhood, now forever bound to the history of the Dark Brotherhood via the Dark Voice. (Located at the bottom of this article)

Baron, if you are looking down upon us now, we the Brethren of the Dark Jedi Brotherhood honor you, you will be missed, and your contributions shall be forever cherished by all those who follow.

Baron Zarco...what can I say about him? He was a great guy, put frankly. He always brought a smile to my face when I logged on to IRC and found him telling jokes and having an overall positive aura about him. I didn't get to see his leadership first-hand, as he was in House Satal Keto, but from what I've heard, he was an excellent Rollmaster and Envoy for HSK. He always wanted to work on something, completing the two Clan Plagueis ACC venues rather quickly after he and Al'Meda joined the clan. He was one of the best writers I've seen, as well. He was the first to challenge me after I was qualified in the Antei Combat Centre, and we fought...I regret now letting our fight time out. Hopefully we can have a little bout in that great ACC in the sky. Baron Zarco, you will be sorely missed, in both real life and in the Dark Jedi Brotherhood. It is with great pleasure that I dedicate an article in the Dark Voice to your memory – rest in peace, my friend.

Members of the Dark Brotherhood, Several months ago I had the opportunity to travel to a small town an hour away from my house and meet my M:GM, Baron Zarco. Baron owned and operated a gaming store next to his law office and invited me over so that we could talk and share a few laughs. I was impressed by Baron, his wife, and their zest for life and the easy manner in which they welcomed me into their lives. After a short hour of talking and bullshitting about life, I bid Baron farewell and headed home. Because of our meeting and my short acquaintance with Baron, I am deeply saddened to announce that he has passed away. I would like to give my condolences to his family and in particular to his wife, Dark Jedi Knight Al'Meda Zarco. In honor of Baron, we have placed him upon our Memorial Website at: <http://memorial.darkjedibrotherhood.com/> The validity of this tragedy is not to be questioned as I have confirmed it with Baron's local newspaper and with his wife. If you have questions, you may come to me; however, the details of the accident will not be released to anyone.

GM Sarin

I didn't get to talk with Baron as much as I would have liked to, but then that's usually how it works, I suppose. When I think about him, and his wife for that matter, I think pure dedication and willingness to help.

They joined Plagueis in June, and immediately wanted to help out with projects. I enjoyed talking with him, loved watching his dedication, and smiled at his wittiness and joking behavior on IRC. An overall great guy, what has happened just sucks, but what can one do? It saddens me that I was only able to know him for a month, and that I didn't get to see him in action longer, especially in the Great Jedi War, but that's just life for you.

It is my honor, however, to announce that with the new income of ships into Clan Plagueis, it has already been agreed that one of the grandest of them will be christened: The Baron. In peace,

Aabsdu di Plagia Dupar
Consul of Clan Plagueis

In this tribute members have written poems or have said a few words to remember Baron Zarco for the great person he was.

Je hebt iemand nodig, stil en oprecht die als het er op aan komt, voor je bid en voor je vecht als je iemand hebt die met je lacht en met je grient dan kun je zeggen; ik heb een vriend.

Dutch friendship poem

Respect to Baron Zarco and his wife... GRD Lokasena Corvinus.

Baron was a great member of this house for many years, and inspired heavy activity from those around him and friendship from those that would accept it. His devotion to the organization, the club, and his Battle team were unsurpassed, and his absence will be missed. Baron, I wish I had been a better friend to you. You will be missed! ~Vodo

Baron was a friend of mine; he helped me with some trials, and was a great guy to talk to. Al'Meda I'm sorry this happened. I respect and admire you both for everything you've done for me. I will miss you BZ you have my respect. This is for you man. [Editor's Note: Daar Created The Image At the Top of this Article]

Baron and I joined Taldryan around the same time we grew in the DB together going through the trials in record time. He then became leader of Battleteam "Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and brought them from near death to fully active. I was in that team while he was in command and the participation level was higher than any other in the DB was. He also saw through many members to the rank of JH and he himself earned his saber. When Zarco and I were called up to be Aedile and Rollmaster respectively for the newly opened house Archanis we could not refuse. He would be one of the reasons that Archanis flourishes today. His work as an ACC judge went practically unnoticed but he was a master in the ACC he would even rival Dalthid in combat and writing in my mind. He won the 6th GJW with us doing a great job but would soon move on to another clan. In this time I appointed him on my Fiction staff as head of the writers corner. He did a fantastic job for me and participated in every Monthly Topic. I have the utmost respect for Baron Zarco and I wish Al'Meda the best of luck in the future I know you are strong Al. My thoughts and memories are with you and the great times we had in Taldryan.

I hope this Tribute to him from Taldryan and others shows you how much he was loved Al.

BZ,

Man.... I can't believe it. One day you and I are just talking about some completely random stuff having a good 'ol time and now you're gone.

When I heard the news it was like someone had cut a piece out of me and hid it where I couldn't find it.

You sir were an amazing person, fun, smart, great to talk to and an all around great guy, we should all be so lucky to have known a guy like you.

I know that everyone shares my sentiment when I say that you will be missed, by some more than others but the entire brotherhood is suffering the pain of your passing. Though you aren't with us any more your memory lives on.

May the road rise to meet you. May the wind be always at your back. May the sun shine warm upon your face. And rains fall soft upon your fields. And until we meet again, May God hold you in the hollow of His hand.

Baron Zarco joined House Ektrosis on 28th November 2005. I was his Envoy and have rarely receive such an active and enthusiastic new member before or since. In just over a month, he had reached the rank of Guardian. Becoming Tetrarch of the Horsemen of the Apocalypse Battleteam in March 2006 he demonstrated the qualities of a future leader of the DB. He seemed to inspire the confidence and trust of those in his care, and brought an almost entirely inactive Battleteam back to life to become some of the brightest members of House Ektrosis.

The Baron was always striving for promotion, determined to demonstrate his abilities and his worth as an Equite. Finally, on 11th July he was awarded his sabre for dedication to his Battleteam, his house and the ACC. At this time, my contact with Zarco decreased as he was called to help lead the newly created House Archanis and would later leave Taldryan to join a new clan. Nevertheless, I counted him as a close friend. It was with great sadness that I heard the news of his death. Our thoughts are with Al'Meda and her family.

DJM Alanna Taldrya

I can remember not always speaking a lot with Baron at first, I didn't know him well and thought him a bit strange, turns out the thought the same of me. I found that our opinions on many things were similar, stemming from a discussion about women actually. We talked for quite sometime that day. Despite the fact we never really got a chance to speak at length again I know that I always enjoyed when he was around after that. I wish I had taken the time to speak more at length and gotten to know Baron better, I think we would have become good friends and I feel pained that I did not take the opportunity that sat before me. He didn't seem to have any enemies so to speak and his sense of humor definitely grew on you pretty quick. I will miss him, and I wish his wife and family the best of luck, and that they recover from this tragedy.

Fear Leads To Anger!

The day was yet to dawn on Trandosha. It was young Vlad Jon Zarco's first day at yet another new school. He was scared as always. No matter how many times his family moved throughout the galaxy due to a combination of his father's restlessness and his chosen occupation as a mercenary young Vlad never got used to having to establish himself yet again in a new place.

Vlad's tender human skin tingled with the excitement born of fear and anxiety. As he passed an eatery in Grossk Enclave he was already teetering on the brink of retching from the nausea of fear. The smell of raw Braaklaadot (the raw intestines of a dangerous shoreline scavenger popular on the main continent of Trandosha) sent him over the edge. He began to heave, the smell of bile penetrating his sinuses. With nothing in his belly the digestive juices were particularly harsh and his eyes began to weep.

Intent on wiping his eyes of these unwelcome signs of weakness he reared his head and furiously dried his eyes with his shirt. In the process, his new shirt, purchased in the hopes of making a good impression on the first day, became stained with vomit. His father, walking behind him became furious and berated Vlad publicly. Though the streets were still relatively vacant due to the early hour several Dosh were drawn to the spectacle and began to snort in laughter and disdain.

Vlad's father became more furious in embarrassment of his son in front of the Trandoshsans he so desperately wanted to impress. As his father bellowed at him Vlad fought to hold back emotion. The trapped sobs gurgled in his throat as the pungent smell of vomit wafted up from his new shirt. Unsatisfied with Vlad's efforts and in a futile attempt to demonstrate his own toughness, Vlad's father struck Vlad in the face with the back of his hand.

Vlad's tender lips burst upon impact. Blood now joined tears and vomit as the adornment of his new shirt, special for his new day. Vlad's father stormed away, back to their hovel, leaving Vlad to find the school on his own. Vlad was a mere eight years old. He had fended for himself on many a new world but this was Trandosha, home of the fierce race of reptiles with a penchant for conflict. Nonetheless, Vlad would have to find his way alone.

Everywhere he stopped he was mocked. Though he could comprehend little of the slang hurled at him he trudged on with the walk of one resigned to be forever alone. He had accepted fully his socialization that being alone was to be feared. Thus, he was full of fear. He was also full of anger.

Though still afraid to show it for lack of any skill to impose his will on his surroundings and constantly off balance due to constantly being uprooted, Vlad was angry. The anger burned in him without purpose. In this way anger only perpetuated his fear. Anger was in most cases, he had come to observe, merely a defense against fear. Anger with nothing more, no vessel to contain and nurture it, was just a fancy version of fear. He had seen that from birth with his father.

Vlad found his new school. He knew he was to be a minority among the Trandoshsan students. Few from off-world would willingly submit themselves to the savagery of Dosh culture, much less the cauldron of Dosh juvenile culture. Most mercenaries operating out of Trandosha brought with them droids to school their children, those that had children and cared to bring them along. It was going to be a challenging day.

As young Vlad finally entered the room where he was already supposed to be the guttural chuckling and hissing of the Dosh younglings signaled his arrival. His presence, adorned in his raiment of fear, stained with blood and bile, was deemed to be such a distraction that he was sent to what passed for a library. There he found the most isolated nook available and sat on the floor in front of one of many racks of data disks. Desperately trying to look like a being with purpose so as not to attract further unwanted attention his trembling hand took a disk from the rack and inserted it into his datapad.

The datapad sprang to life and whirred with the effort of opening the information encoded on the disk and, for his convenience, translating any text over to standard galactic. His fear was instantly replaced with fascination as he watched Dosh warriors and warriors from other races engage in combat training with their natural gifts as well as melee weapons. The text spoke of the study of combat theory and practice as a way as well as a technique.

Vlad reflected that he was no stranger to violence and brutality, but this was different. These beings claimed to train for conflict as a way of life, for its own sake. Yes, they would use their skills as mercenaries as did his father. Yes, their skills had use. However, these beings seemed more in control of their violent impulses. Perhaps their violence was not an impulse or expression of fear at all. Could spark, drive, anger, whatever one wanted to call it, really be channeled so that violence was more than the pitiful, desperate offspring of fear?

Vlad began to feel his energy well up inside him. He felt strong. He had felt anger before but he always knew no matter how angry he was he was still just a scared little slug. This anger was different. It washed over him like the warm breeze carried on the gusts of wind that herald the coming day on Tatooine. Yes, his sun was rising.

With his newfound, though perhaps at this point misplaced, confidence he felt a gentle cackle right behind his heart and in front of his spine. This feeling was manifested by what he felt to be a low, dark laughter of epiphany urging him on. He would find someone on this violent, competitive planet to teach him these methods. He would forge himself into what his father had always wanted to be but for lack of will could never accomplish.

He would raise himself, forged in the crucible of conflict, but never scared or embarrassed again. He was at last in possession of at least an image of who he wanted to be. Yes, fear had led to anger but anger would now have a proper vessel!

Madness?

Poem by GRD Lokasena 7384

I tried...
I tried to warn them. But they would not listen.
Instead they threw me in this forsaken place.
A place of madd dreams and feavered thauts.
Damn them. They are blind.
But I can see... them...
I know

I know their devices.
I can smell them, you see.
And fire, fire is the key to purge their wretched souls for our reality.
Hear me, we must fight them.
They are coming to bring forth the world's ending.
You must help me; you're the only one who believes me...!
You believe me, don't you?
Don't you...?

Fiction Tribune: I very much like the psychological aspect of this poem. Sena conveyed what the speaker is thinking and feeling, and the reader feels pulled into it, part of it. He did a great job of capturing the desperation and confusion of the speaker. Sena did a great job of jumping around and showing incoherent thought. Also the spelling mistakes make it seem like the speaker is confused and not thinking straight. In all a very good poem and Sena has been a good show in the Writers Corner for a while now and thoroughly deserves this.

The Origins of Draco Maligo
Fiction by GRD Draco Maligo 8521

I am Draco Maligo. Like most beings across the galaxy, I had a family. But they are no more, and I no longer have anyone to stand in my way with their pathetic moral principles as their weapon and judgement.

I was born on the planet Almanian, on the outer rim. It was an unaligned planet and technologically backward, with limited galactic trade. As for the social structure, there were only four castes you could belong to – aristocracy, industrialist, factory worker and farmer. The former two had all the political power and wealth, and were, of course, the two smallest castes. If you were a worker or a farmer all you could hope for was a life full of toil.

My father's family owned a lemon fruit farm. The work was hard, and the only ones who made money on our toil were the distributors who took the fruit, packaged it and sold it. It left us with little money to spend on luxuries or even education for my brothers, sister, and me. Unless of course we had an attack of the tufi flies. Then the crop would be ruined and we would face a season of near-starvation.

I was young when I discovered I had a gift. Something to separate me from the others. Something to make me feel special. Something I could use! I had an ability to distract others using the power of my mind. If I concentrated really hard I could plant suggestions in their heads.

My parents were horrified. They ordered me never to use my gift, never to talk about it. People would say I was a sorcerer. It would put a black mark on my whole family. We would be driven from the pathetic little town we lived in and forced to fend for ourselves in the dirty cities that housed the factory workers. Like we had so much to lose.

I felt like I had been robbed. I had something special and my parents banned me from using it. They didn't appreciate it, or me. I lived in drudgery every day, dreaming of a time in my life when I could do what I want, live how I wanted, and make credits, real credits, without the dirty work of farm living.

Most beings would say it was a terrible tragedy that my family was murdered. I suppose it was, from a certain point of view. But for me it was a spectacular liberation. I remember vividly the morning the alarms went off. It was a sunny spring day. The trees were in full blossom, and the smell of the nectar drew the pollinating insects to do their work. The winter's work of pruning and fertilising was done, and most of my time was spent pursuing what studies I could.

As much as the elite cared nothing for our well being, they still needed the poor to do their work, grow their food, and produce the wealth they enjoyed. So when the Mandelorian attacked we were herded to the nearest shelters. Almanian had in place a planetary communications system, which could transmit alarms anywhere, trouble threatened and a system of shelters for the poor. The rich had well-appointed, guarded bunkers. The poor had to defend themselves with obsolete blasters.

Since we couldn't afford a speeder we ran. We weren't even close to making it. We encountered a pair of raiders looking for loot. They might've shot us all even if we had credits to give them, but since my family was destitute it only made them mad. I saw them shoot my father and mother, then my oldest brother. They stopped for a moment to argue about what to do to my sister, and that gave me the time I needed to decide what to do.

I was too small to fight them. I had no weapon to use on them. I had no credits to barter for my life. The only thing I had was my gift, the ability my parents forbade me ever to use. But then, I had not heeded their command. I had practised. Often. To get what I wanted from other children. To get what I wanted from girls. To get what I wanted from teachers. I had gotten good at planting suggestions in other beings' minds. I looked at the pair of Mandelorian raiders. Then I made them think there was an explosion behind them.

They turned, separated and crouched low to the ground. I raced in the opposite direction while trying to keep them concentrating away from me. I spotted an irrigation ditch and dove in. I lay there in the muddy water, only my face above the surface, keeping still and listening for the footfalls of the booted soldiers. I cleared my mind while trying to sense the presence of any hostiles, prepared to use my ability to save my life. I heard several blaster shots after my escape, that I suppose spelled doom for the rest of my siblings.

I lay there in the muck all day, thinking. Since my family was dead I would inherit the farm. It wasn't worth much, but it would be enough to buy passage off-planet. But when I presented myself to the civic council the magistrate told me I was too young to own property, and the courts upheld that judgement. The land was auctioned off to one of the wealthy families on the planet who rented it out to tenant farmers, and the government kept the money.

That's when I turned to stealing. It was much easier than either working the farm or slaving away in a hot, dirty, noisy factory. For the first time in my life I was clean. I wore nice clothes. I could walk down the street without the shame of poverty clinging to me like the mud from my family's farm.

I got lazy. I no longer dreamed of flying away from Almanian. I stole for several years, had a nice apartment in a part of the city reserved for middle managers and my neighbours thought I was somebody. I had developed a network to sell the stolen goods through, so I no longer had to steal money for rent and food to eat. I could take any items of value and have my confederates sell them on the black market and use the credits from my share of the take to actually walk into a store and buy what I wanted. For the first time, my life was good.

Then I ran into that Jedi. He never told me his name. He had a Coruscant accent, which immediately identified him as a member of the privileged elite. I was doing some recon work for a caper I was working on to steal verbo-brains. They were intended for one of the factories on the planet, and it would have been my biggest haul.

The padawan was so smug and arrogant. He was on the planet with his master to settle a dispute between the factory owners and some inter-galactic shipping concern. In other words, to decide if either the rich or the richer would get a bigger slice of the pie. No one cared that the majority of the beings on the planet were living in abject poverty, working for sub-standard wages.

The Jedi knew what I was up to. He could tell that I had potential with something he called the 'Force.' He told me to stop using it for selfish personal reasons. He said it would be better for me to have honest work and live in penury than to risk going to the dark side. I said, "Yeah, sure," and left for the day. Two days later I was set to make my theft.

And he was there again. He said he wouldn't allow me to steal from the rich, even though it was the best way I had of making a living. It reminded me of my parents telling me not to use my gift, of their wanting me to be stuck as an uneducated peasant farmer for the rest of my life. I was tired of people trying to make me deny who I was, of taking things away from me.

I had never known rage like I felt that day, that minute. The Jedi was so self-righteous. I hated him. I am still not sure exactly what I did. I felt the rage build in me. Time slowed. I reached out for his mind and poured all my rage, all my resentment, and all my bitterness into him.

He was surprised. He didn't expect me to resist him, or assault him. I felt him calling upon the Force to resist me. It worked, at first, but I was in too much of a temper to give up. Then he weakened. I could see the pain on his face. His eyes closed. His hands went up to his temples, holding tight his head as if he thought it would explode. Then he let out this most blood-curdling scream and collapsed into a heap on the ground.

It was surreal. I stared at him for a time, I don't know how long. He didn't move. Then I panicked. I thought I was in trouble for sure. I couldn't stand up to a Jedi, not a real one. When my mind cleared I took the padawan's lightsaber and the bag of credits hanging from his belt. I thought about going back to my apartment to fetch my belongings, but thought I should blast off from Almania as soon as I could, before the fool's master came after me.

It wasn't like I couldn't earn more. I sat on the transport, the first one to leave after I reached the spaceport, heading for Ord Mantell. I thought about where I should go. Then I wondered what would happen if the Jedi tracked me down. I needed to understand my abilities, to hone them, to be able to defend myself.

There is a famous research university on Garos IV, well known to all of us in the outer rim. The first transport leaving Almania was headed in that general direction, which I took as a sign for me to go there. I figured I'd look up some information on the Force and train myself to use it. I wasn't sure if I'd use it for protection or to make myself a better thief, but it felt right for me to pursue the knowledge.

I was sitting on that light transport heading toward a planet in the mid-rim, a place I'd never been. Despair gripped me as I pondered my future. My life careened from one disaster to another, and there I sat, a few credits in my pocket and nothing else but the shirt on my back to call my own. I was alone and afraid, no family, no friends, and an exile from my home planet. Perhaps a common enough situation across the galaxy, but not for this seventeen year old boy.

So I sat there wondering if real Jedi would come looking for me. I left everything I owned, but feared going back for it. The padawan had told me a little about the Force and the Jedi, and said I had natural ability. But he also said I was walking down the dark side, whatever that meant. He wouldn't help me to find my potential.

It was pretty naïve of me to think that any useful knowledge would be in the data files for all to see. After several frustrating days of searching for a few grains of truth I was ready to give up. To entertain myself I tested the limits of my abilities to plant various thoughts into the minds of others. I had some success and a few laughs, but I grew bored and ready to leave.

Then I felt it. An unsettling icy darkness. I couldn't pinpoint it, and couldn't define it but it seemed to be coming for me. I froze in terror. I'd never experience feelings like that in my life. Not even staring down the barrels of Mandalorian rippers chilled me like that.

My mind was telling me to get up and run, but my muscles wouldn't obey. I stared at the door waiting for the doom I felt to approach. Then he walked in. He looked like a corpse, tall, lank, and pale. I'd never seen a Nagai before, and it made me think of the un-dead in cheap holonet stories. He wore all black. He stopped in the doorway and his piercing eyes stared right at me.

I swallowed hard. I had no idea what to do. He began to walk toward me. I concentrated, closed my eyes, and tried to make myself invisible. I reached out to his mind and tried planting the idea that my seat was empty, that no one was here. Focusing as hard as I could I put forth the illusion of emptiness. But I heard his footsteps as he stopped a meter from me. I looked up to see a flicker of a smile on his face.

"Not bad for an untrained being. I am Drodik Va'lence al'Tor," he said in a low-pitched voice. He spoke Galactic basic with an accent I'd never heard before. "I know what you are seeking, and I can give it to you."

I stared at him in shock. How could he know? I thought back on the last several days, wondering if I hit my head somewhere. "How do you know me?" I stammered out in a squeaky voice.

He laughed, a low rumbling chuckle. "I had a vision in the Force."

"The Force?" My heart pounded in my chest. Maybe this is why I came to Garos IV.

"I work with a group of beings who use the Force. We can train you, in exchange for your loyalty and obedience. The Force guided both of us here, I am sure of it. If you want to reach your full potential, follow me." He turned and strode to the exit. I hesitated only a second before I pushed myself up from my seat and hurried after him. From the Garos system we travelled to Antei, and thus began my life with the Dark Jedi Brotherhood. Fiction Tribune: This was a very well written fiction; I really enjoyed reading it. The first person viewpoint was interesting and a good way to tell the story giving it a more personal tone that set it apart from other stories. Good attention to detail and it drew the reader in. A fine piece of work that fully deserves a reward for the effort and hard work alone never mind the writing ability.

THE EXPERT SAID ... About Becoming Good Players ...

An interview with Obelisk Prelate Beowulf

In the Dark Jedi Brotherhood War games, the name of Beowulf or Hev, is notable to hear, especially about his lightsaber play-style : artistic, invincible and always imposing the rules of combat. People also know him as a first-class teacher in lightsaber combat, utilizing the platform of Jedi Knight combat series (JA or JO), although he is quite selective in choosing his students. As he has the impatience of a Shistasvanen, he dislikes the people who do not want to listen. "Without listening, you will learn nothing," one of his philosophical assertions, for learners to think.

A valuable moment happened when he gave his commendation of publishing his remark about becoming good players, explicating things to make some people good and some not so good in playing. "Their way of playing," Beowulf pointed out the core, "There are offensive people... defensive ways of playing. You have the case that you might beat someone easily... that somebody else breaks his hand over; while this person beats someone else easily that you have awful trouble with. There are people who just play their routine, their way and then there are people who adapt mainly. The latter are usually the more successful ones."

He clarified further his note about someone who could not be beaten because he was "too good", with the foundation of adaptation." I tried to describe the phenomenon that some people virtually can't touch someone while others seem to have no problem with this particular player. Think of it this way - gross simplification, actually - : one player is stone, one is rock, one is scissor and those who can adapt can change from stone to scissor maybe... or maybe to all three, depending on what they face."

In the purpose of correct comprehension, he emphasized the meaning of adaptation as pure playing techniques and tactic. However, regarding the some personal attitude subjects, Beowulf cited about "self-fulfilling prophecy", as it was more like the impact of pessimism. "If you keep telling yourself "I can't beat him" you can't beat him".

Being asked further to give some examples about adaptation, Beowulf directed the explanation in a combat, with saber-staff against single lightsaber as weapons. He described the Staffer was using Butterfly katas mostly, spamming them left and right, and noted that the Single Player had to use definitely good timing to hit the end portions of the katas or when the Staffer retreated. "There you would use Red style, in this instance... since Red allows good firepower at a certain moment that you can time".

He then set a condition that suddenly, the Staffer decided to simply maul the red user over. "The Single player has to adapt... Red is not the best against an onslaught of yellow swings, " as he designated that the Single lightsaber player had to use a lot of backward jumping while starting swings in air to catch the Staffer as he charged, or on the other way the Single player had to switch to yellow, to fence the Staffer down, and Beowulf noted the difficulty of those actions.

"If the Single user manages that, the Staffer has to think of something new and so on and on," Beowulf explained, "who runs out of cards in his sleeve, usually loses."

Beowulf restated that he called a good player as someone who was able to adapt, even if in the situation when the opponent was playing laming tactics, since these tactics could be countered too, except at a really professional level. The Prelate added only few people ever learned how to overcome these tactics, because they lacked the way to adapt. He said the circumstance was pretty hard to apply due to the difficulty of timing and he showed his happiness of not having to use it in the DB.

"Most "lames" that happen, do happen by accident or out of not knowing better," Beowulf depicted the laming incidents," Then there are a few who actually try it.. but they're not good at it."

He then explained about swaying and poking, which had been declared to be against the rules of combat. "There are generally sways - which include the spins - and pokes. Sway is adding momentum to your swings by quick mouse-movement. In JA, it increases damage and the chance to hit, since you increase the swing arc. If you drive this to absurd extremes, you get spins." Although sways could happen by accident, he stressed that the difference between accident and abuse could be seen.

"Then there's the poke. Pokes are somewhat equal to sway, but instead of turning into one direction, you rock your mouse left and right... so your saber goes crisscross over your opponent. Easily stacking 200+ damage with one swing, sounds easier than it is, but I'm not gonna explain in detail how to do it," he smiled when seeing the eagerness to know further.

Elucidating the difference between pokes and scissors, Beowulf noted that pokes were only done with red style, which could not scissor, and underlined the scissors' availability in yellow or blue and those scissors were composed by multiple particular swings. He concluded that sways and pokes simply were not considered as good playing.

"Don't play for medals or competitions only," he answered to the question of how to create a good playing environment. "That's how you get better actually. If you constantly burden yourself with this artificial "loss" of a not earned medal, you'll never be willing to experiment".

"Without comps or medals, there is no losing in JA/JO." Beowulf presented his statement.

He urged the need to stop thinking about JA/JO as a "one-dimensional chickenladder ". It's not a thing where a guy three steps above me can automatically beat the guy two steps above," the Obelisk Prelate explained about the respective ladder term," It's not that way for the sole reason I depicted earlier. Even a player you beat could be a better player than you because he's capable of adapting to way more situations. He's got better understanding, just couldn't figure how to get you."

Beowulf gave a precaution about his way of teaching as he would actively break up routines which messed people's way of playing. "That's the price for getting better," he commented on the consequences, "People should check themselves for these more often and try not to always use them for their improvement."

Fiction Tribune Interview

Fomer Dark Voice Senior Correspondent Odin Vaaj

"...Members wanting to be T:F once my reign is over"

The Novel Paradigm of the Fiction Tribune

As everyone knows, fiction is an integral part of the Dark Brotherhood and it is the very base of existence of this esteemed newsletter. Thus, when a new fiction Tribune ascends to his chair, a number of questions pop up. Outlining his goals with clarity, Krath Priest Ricco Vao seems to be headed straight towards the expansion of the system of Fiction.

His primary goal is to change the way members look at fiction. A lot of Dark Jedi thought of fiction-writing as a chore; something they had to do in a big competition. He believes that fiction should be an enjoyable affair – both to the reader as well as the writer. Stringent rules also hinder the writer, which the Tribune wants to change by giving MT's which are free to write.

The intention to alter the mindset and paradigm of the old view towards the job is a spirit for the Krath Priest that will effectuate the entire scope of his office. He wants to revolutionize the frame of mind of seeing the Fiction Tribune job as a boring and frustrating one into an energizing liberty, since the job entails a lot of different areas of work. "I also wish to get members wanting to be T:F once my reign is over," his statement will be also a freshening hope and expectation to keep on the members' minds.

The first beat he will do straight away is to set up the enjoyment of fiction. The competitions will reflect on less restrictions and more pleasurable to do. Giving a short topic and releasing the autonomy of interpretation to the Dark Jedi will be the way forward at the present time for fiction, although in some occasions, specific boundaries like in the RoS also being presented.

One of his other bigger goals is the Writers Corner's reactivation. He deplores the requirement of seeing the editor first for the submitter to get a Dark Side Scroll (DSS). As he emphasizes, the members shall have the freedom of choice for going to the editor or not regarding their works enhancement. The Tribune encourages the Dark Jedi to post some of their works on the Corner, with the assurance of a relaxing and calm place to have, along with the readiness of the Tribune and his staff to help.

He expects to see amazing fictions being written that will mark on the history of the DB streamline for the long term achievement. The topic of the Seven and the Exodus was chosen in order to have some spectacular pieces of fiction, although he considered it was a bit too soon for the actual history. For the next step, there will be a huge competition named "Prophecy" for after the Great Jedi War, an epic competition and worth to participate.

In such various goals, several staff will assist Tribune Vao in the fiction management. Battlemaster Draken-Korin 'Ylith' Elariël Atema as the Chief of the writer's corner and editor will help him on the writer's corner, chosen by his amazing record on the same place when the Battlemaster worked with Headmaster Anshar Kahn Tarentae. Battlemaster Rasilvenaira StormRaven will be positioned as the Archive maintainer and editor as she has proven her writing ability in the ACC and is fantastic when creating websites whereas Battlelord Taku "Crix" Matsuki Taldrya will be the main editor for all the writer's corner stories as this is his only job on the staff. Finally, Epis RevengeX Palpatine will help the Tribune as editor and competitions planner, due to his vast fiction understanding and inspirations.

Tribune Vao's enthusiasm of leading the Fiction Tribune, of giving his best to revolutionize fiction also comes from his great mentor- Grand Master Jac Cotelin 's encouragement and the past Krath High Priestess – Lady Alanna's support. The Tribune's faith on delivering the fun environment of fiction will be an optimism for all Dark Jedi to witness the fiction improvement in the Dark Jedi Brotherhood.

A Vong Encounter

Dark Voice Correspondent Mononoke "Macron" Keibatsu Sadow

Yuuzhan Vong, An Examination - Alchemist's Notes 776

~DB Holonet, Clan Naga Sadow Space, Orian System, Sepros

“A most unusual thing occurred to this researcher recently... The results were staggering... This was not a human at all, but rather an extragalactic humanoid alien... Although the data currently existing on the Yuuzhan Vong is sparse, victim number 776 appeared to be an actual Vong.”

I had recently developed a new set of biosensors for my line of IT-3 Interrogator droids, and had stationed several clandestinely in random crowded areas on Sepros in order to collect data in a blind trial run. One of the droids detected a remarkable set of pheromonal and biochemical signatures that did not correlate with any known alien species. A quick consultation with other sources via holonet revealed little, although one Bothan contact on the planet of Rhommamool indicated some similar signatures. Intrigued, I followed the human-appearing being (hereby tagged as #776) personally.

In order to begin collecting data, I shadowed it for some time with the assistance of a Dark Eye droid. The droid had been charged with a variety of drugs and poisons, as is my usual policy. I then infiltrated the test subject with nanite plastid-type tracking droids remotely via an inhaled aerosol. The vectored agent was dispersed by my Sith droid covertly. I then elected to test the Violator Gas against the creature's system. The low dosage level proved to be effective against the life form, but statistically this means very little. The being lived, albeit suffering from the usual bone deformities and dermal slumping that resulted from the inoculation.

The pacified specimen was forcibly collected and removed it to a secure private lab facility on Gamuslag for further investigation. The results were staggering. This was not a human at all, but rather an extragalactic humanoid alien. Although the data currently existing on the Yuuzhan Vong is sparse, victim number 776 appeared to be an actual Vong. Once we removed the "Ooglith Masquer" from it's visage, the disgusting features of an actual Vong greeted us. These creatures apparently use living technology. They can appear as most humanoid species, given the abilities of the "Masquer" that was recovered. Rumors of exaggerated body modification and bizarre biotechnology used by the beings proved to be true.

The filthy abomination had an unusual ability to resist pain and seemed to have little presence in the Force. I must embarrassingly admit that it took all of my humble skills to bring it to a high level of tension, and even then the vile creature actually seemed to relish the agony. Fortunately, torture of the body is only one technique in the ancient and vast Sith repertoire. There are many others... Predictably, the most effective techniques for debriefing this subject proved to be psychological in nature.

Apparently, these beings have a warrior culture that thrives on suffering and honor via personal combat. They seem to view droids with horror and disgust, referring to them as "unclean". Insinuating that this individual operative had failed in it's mission, and was thereby dishonored by being rendered helpless worked well. Application of droid interrogators in the form of several eager modified IT-3 units was even more effective. This effectively broke the subject's mental defenses, and allowed for collection of some pertinent intelligence.

The subject proved to be a most fascinating study. In the end, there will be more to be learned from this subject. I have turned number 776 over to the Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master and Dark Council for further examination.

The images shown above were collected from a surveillance data chip found in the possession of the infiltrator. Note the unpleasant looking parasite on the right side, middle. Test subject #776 is on the left side, middle.

Sith Core Lecture

Warlord Welshman Corsair Erinós Tarentae

A Scholar's View.

Disciples, brothers, betters and even my lesser, welcome to this lecture. The Onderon campus of our fine Shadow Academy has rarely seen such an influx of Dark Jedi and indeed never have I presided over a Sith CORE module which has generated such widespread interest from across the Diaspora of Clans and institutions. The gate keepers of the Shroud have never before in a time of peace seen so many flight plans filed for the moon of Lyspair. I thank you for putting me on the spot.

Now, what has drawn you all across the gulf of space to this hardened bunker? I have a feeling that this rather spartan and austere location will be the scene of an apocalypse, a great revelation. And what will this disclosure surround? Simply put the recent actions pertaining to the actions of one Dark Side Adept Maxamillian von Oberst-Tarentae and the previous Depty Grand Master Halcyon. I would first however request that before shouts of prejudice and pandering to one of my Clan Elders arise from your various throats or analogous organs I respectfully ask for you to show respect to my position and the neutrality that my office in the Shadow Academy demands.

Now how will I, a mere Eclectic Pedagogue, stretch a seemingly open and shut case of court intrigue and its resultant punishment into this lesson which you have all deemed worthy of gracing with your presence? For those of you who are an integral part of our esteemed Order you will know the facts I will henceforth utter but for some reason when recent matters occurred you all seemed to forget. You devolved into 'civilised' humans, one might even say you acted like Jedi in a pathetic attempt to seek justice over a perceived wrong.

The cornerstone of Sith Lore demands conflict. In our continuous drive towards perfection we beguile, sneak and plot our way to the pinnacles of our ambition. We are only held back by our own morals and consciences, where we reach in society is determined only by the limits on which we put upon ourselves. We Sith must be completely amoral, devious and if need be downright murderous. This is even highlighted in our glorious teachings, and true to say quotes exist from many of the great Lords of our Galaxy to this effect, the one from Darth Tyranus illustrates my point I think

"Treachery is the way of the Sith."

So, what our Adept did by exposing the relationship in a rather explosive manner was a beautiful ploy to garner power and respect from across the Clans, which seems to have occurred, indeed accolades temporarily shut down the comms centre of Yridia II as the wave front of the expose propagated throughout Brotherhood space. Granted some Clans and individuals have denounced the act but those who did so are unworthy of the Sith label and as such are beneath contempt for us true adherents of the Final Way.

The behaviour of the Grand Master in this matter however cannot be faulted. He saw a threat to his power and in the manner of Lords past clamped down on what he no doubt saw as an uprising in the making, paranoia and foresight are two gifts the Dark Side bestow upon our glorious Order. Indeed, his removal of Oberst from Proconsul and his previous removal of, now, Epis Timeros from Arcona Proconsul could be seen as a cynical and calculated plot to set back two of the more vocal antagonists to some of his policies, by removing these leaders internal Clan issues and strife took the fore and for a period of time the Clans were focusing inwards giving the Grand Master time to consolidate and plan. Sarin, with ruthless tactics and gall imposed upon the Brotherhood, using the incident as a catalyst, a series of measures to strengthen his powers and those of the Dark Council. One almost feels adoration for this man, who in such a manner proved himself worthy of the title Grand Master of the Sith, if the removal of Timeros hadn't have apparently back fired, indeed the man has since ascended to the position of Consul of one of the August Clans of the Brotherhood and been promoted to the rank of Epis and who can tell what affect the removal of two such influential members had on the recent Alliance between Tarentum and Arcona? Surely a point to consider, in utilising his power he, Sarin, has apparently drawn together two Clans which, until now, had had an ambivalent relationship.

The actions of the then Deputy Grand however are slightly more puzzling, indeed some might say cowardly. He had, within his grasp, the perfect opportunity to destroy an opponent or even show off his union. Instead he ran into the shadows and resigned his power and stewardship over the Brotherhood. Is this the behaviour of one who has risen to the esteemed power and rank he has reached? Truly confounding conduct indeed.

A discussion on this matter could not proceed without a nod in the direction of the other side of the relationship. Unlike the Jedi we Sith do not deny ourselves to feel love for others and indeed a relationship between a relatively lowly positioned member and a high ranking member is not unprecedented in our long and rich history, one needs only point to the relationship between Ulic Qel Droma, himself an Apprentice to a Sith Lord, and the Krath Priestess Aleema. The benefits to both parties are plentiful, the Deputy Grand earns the greater loyalty of a single Clan, a surge in loyalty which would allow him to destabilise others. From her point of view she would gain access to greater powers and teachings strengthening her power. Truly an exhibition of stunning foresight from a member of a lower Order I must admit.

I also feel that a monologue on this subject could be counted as a failure if I failed to address a recent article in the last issue of the noble Dark Voice, an article written by the hand of the right honourable Consul of Scholae Palatine in which he applauds the new "member rights" thrust through into the life of each of us. I tell you know dear Sith, the only rights we have are those we take by the edge of our sabres or the thrust of our cold logic. Everyone in the Brotherhood as equals? Please. If this were the case positions would be redundant; indeed the Dark Side would never allow this apparent utopia. Greed would drive each individual to attain more than their neighbour and the 'despicable and cruel actions by one of our Dark Jedi'? I refer you to the earlier quote from Darth Tyrannus. Accept the teachings of the Final Way and such trivial pursuits fade into obscurity.

In conclusion. The actions undertaken by Field Marshal Oberst were the perfect example of Sith behaviour, treachery is a survival mechanism. Indeed the position of Proconsul would never have been within his grasp if he weren't willing to sacrifice others. He could have leaked the information from the shadows but where would the glory have been in that? How could he have stepped forward with credibility and assumed the spoils that fell to him? The accolades and glory to go along with notoriety.

Darth Sarin proved his worth to hold the title. Clamping down on dissent and its instigators with lightning speed and crushing force, indeed a neutral party might wonder why the Grand Master stopped at the measures he did. Surely more punitive measures would have been well within his grasp and means to employ.

Do not forget my Brothers, we are above the myriad waste that inhabit this galaxy. We do not allow ourselves to be betrothed to the limiting factor which is decency, we disavow ourselves of it in the search of power. For at the end of the day that is what matters, our ability to generate a force to make a change. To transform the galaxy. They kid themselves that they have based a civilisation on justice and democracy, but that is not how nature works. The strong survive, the weak perish. This recent case has demonstrated this cornerstone of Sith Philosophy perfectly. Survival of the fittest.

I thank you all for attending and one need not remind you that for the purpose of this meeting Lyspair is hallowed ground and no... un-pleasantries may transpire. May the Force be with you.
